Stage set for last presidential debate

Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, two presidential candidates in search of a breakthrough to a clear edge in the race for the White House, get their last chance tonight to find that advantage in head-on debate.

Their third and final debate takes place in historic Williamsburg, Va. Afterward, the Republican President and his Democratic challenger leave on campaign trips that will keep them on the road until the election.

Associated Press polls following the first two debates gave Ford an edge in the first and Carter an almost identical edge in the second.

So, t's one each going into the final match. But no one can be sure what role the debates will have in the final election outcome.

The first debate covered domestic issues and economic policy; the second, foreign policy and defense issues. There is no limitation on the subject matter of the third debate.

A week ago, the vice presidential candidates, Republican Sen. Bob Dole and Democratic Sen. Walter F. Mondale, debated. It was their only scheduled meeting, and it produced generally livelier exchanges than the confrontations between the men at the top of the tickets.

President Ford and Carter spoke at the annual Al Smith Dinner in New York on Thursday night, a charity affair that usually draws the presidential candidates from both major parties.

Carter and Ford timed their appearances so that one was gone before the other arrived.

In an ornate ballroom decorated with thousands of roses, and before an audience heavy with philanthropists and politicians, first Ford and later Carter spoke, each introduced by Terence Cardinal Cooke, Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York.

Tradition has it that if the speeches are political, their tone should be lighthearted. And so it was.

Ford took note of the upcoming debate and said, "Gov. Carter is going to answer his questions and I'm going to question my answers." They were references to Ford's frequent campaign charge that Carter refuses to give straight answers during the debates and to the President's own gaffe in the second debate when he said there was "no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe."

Ford also told the dinner that "we've just installed a special lock on the front door of the White House. It's Jimmy proof."

Carter referred to his interview with Playboy magazine and said, "I had an opportunity to chat privately with Cardinal Cooke and he gave me some good advice. Among other things, I've agreed that if I ever give another interview on Biblical sins of pride and lust, it will be to a reporter from Our Sunday Visitor."

Our Sunday Visitor is a widely circulated Catholic weekly.

Both candidates may have trouble figuring out where they are during the final 10 days of the campaign. They'll be on the road constantly and if either wonders where he is, a good guess would be that he's in one of the eight most populous states, all seen as key battlegrounds and none of which is considered a sure bet for either man.

Aboard Air Force One, on the flight back to Washington from New York, an aide said gaps are being left in Ford's campaign schedule that will be filled after the latest polling data is received on Monday.

The eight big states where both candidates expect to spend much of their remaining time are California, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Texas and New Jersey.

Carter flew to Williamsburg immediately after the New York dinner Thursday night. Thousands of New Yorkers waited along Park Avenue to wave at the Carter motorcade as it rolled past and, despite a post-midnight arrival in Williamsburg, Carter was greeted by two crowds.

A crowd estimated at about 700 persons waited at the airport in nearby Newport News, Va., and another 1,000 were on hand when the candidate arrived at his Williamsburg hotel.

"The real debate in this campaign is between Mr. Carter and Mr. Carter," Ford repeated. He told a news conference Wednesday that "Mr. Carter does waver, wander, wiggle and waffle."

Those charges fit in with the Ford campaign theme that the President is a known quantity, a decent man who has brought the nation back from the agony of Watergate, while Carter is the unknown quantity and no one can say how he might act as president.

Carter has hit hard at what he describes as the lack of leadership in the Ford administration. He frequently quotes the sign President Harry Truman kept in the Oval Office that read, "The buck stops here," and then tells crowds that "The buck can travel all over Washington these days and not find a place to stop."

Now both men are poised for their final campaign push. And barring a major slip by either man in tonight's debate, the two candidates could reach election day in a virtual dead heat.

As the two major party candidates prepared to debate, independent candidate Eugene McCarthy was campaigning in San Francisco where he was critical of state laws that have kept him off some ballots.

"The people are unconstitutionally being denied the right of choice because of state laws and the federal election law," McCarthy said. He said he now plans to have succeeded in getting on the ballot in "slightly more than 30 states" by election day.

Meantime, pollster Louis Harris said Thursday that whether Carter wins or loses the last presidential debate, "the doubts about him continue to increase...."

Harris reported the results of a poll of 1,503 likely voters on the impact of the second debate. After that debate, they felt by a 50 per cent to 26 percent spread that Ford, not Carter, "has the better experience to be president for the next four years."

Before the first debate a 49-29 plurality worried about Carter's "lack of experience." After the first debate, which Harris said Carter lost 40-31, the number of voters who said they worry about Carter's lack of experience dropped to 45-41. In the second debate, Harris said Carter was the clear-cut victor by 54-30 per cent. However, Harris said, the number of voters who worry about Carter's lack of experience rose to 52-32 after the second debate.

Court to apply for housing authority status, seek funds

BENTON — After hearing Mrs. Helen Mitchell of Columbia, a rural housing specialist for the Missouri Municipal League, and Bill Hanna, director of the Sikeston Public Housing Authority, explain the Section 8 Existing Housing Program developed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Scott County Court decided Thursday to apply for status as a housing authority and to seek subsidization for 60 housing units in the county.

Initally, the court was told that the program is only available to areas with a housing authority, therefore the County Court would need to apply for status as a housing authority for the rural areas, including the unincorporated communities, of Scott County.

Mrs. Mitchell said that once the court obtained housing authority status, it could apply for the Section 8 program.

At first, the three members of the panel said they had the impression there would be too much additional paper work involved.

Hanna said the paper work could be handled by the Sikeston and Chaffee housing authorities, then presented to the court for approval as the housing authority for rural areas of the county.

The Section 8 program assists families paying more than 25 per cent of their income for rent and utilities.

An example would be a family living in a good three-bedroom home which earns only $4,000 a year and pays rent of $150 a month plus utilities. This program could possibly pay the difference between 25 per cent of the family income — $1,000 — and the above gross rent.

Fair market rental price guidelines would be set by the County Court as the housing authority for rural areas and unincorporated communities.

Under the program, landlords who rent to tenants under this program would enter into a one-year or three-year lease agreement with the tenant and a five-year agreement with HUD.

The court then agreed to apply for housing authority status and to seek permission for 60 units to be subsidized under the program.

In addition, Mrs. Mitchell and Tanna Parrish, director of urban development in Charleston, told the court they felt a housing rehabilitation program should be started in the communities of Benton, Scott City and Illmo.

They said this would be an experimental program to show HUD the rehabilitation program could work in small communities. Funding, they said, could be obtained under Community Development Block Grant Program funds up to $400,000.

The housing officials asked the court to contact the mayors and councils of the three communities so the program possibilities could be presented to them.

The court members said the community leaders would be contacted and asked to attend a meeting on Nov. 4 at the county courthouse.

Parrish said the county could be the first in the country to sponsor a countywide rehabilitation program.

In other business, Clara Hanselman, Leon Schlitt and Elmer Seyer of Oran Route One asked the court about the clearing of Ditch No. 18 which runs along their property lines.

Some clearing has already been completed along the ditch property of Henry Eftink.

The court agreed to meet later in the day with the landowners, the county engineer and Danny Dumey, who cleared the ditch along the Eftink property.

Presiding Judge Louie Hirschowitz reported that the County Court has received petitions containing more than 1,100 signatures asking that a proposal establishing a county wide ambulance district be submitted to Scott County voters in an election.

Hirschowitz said the court would check the validity of the signatures on the petitions and set an election date which, most likely, would be April 5, 1977, in conjunction with the city elections.

Ruling on Noranda pollution postponed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A ruling on a controversial pollution case involving Noranda Aluminum, Inc., of New Madrid has been postponed until next month by the Missouri Air Conservation Commission.

The issue will be decided at its next meeting Nov. 17 in Kansas City, members ruled here Thursday.

The commission has voted once to allow the company to continue violating air pollution regulations because the over-all air in the New Madrid area purportedly meets federal regulations. But it is reconsidering that vote.

In final arguments Thursday, attorneys for Noranda and the air commission staff argued over whether the air in the New Madrid area really meets fedral standards.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Dan Summers argued that although the air meets primary standards, those necessary for good health, it violates more stringent secondary standards, those necessary to protect property and human welfare.

Attorneys for Noranda argued that it has not been proved that even the secondary standards for clean air have been violated consistently.

Noranda attorneys argued that the added pollution from the aluminum manufacturer was so small that it could not be detected by nearby air pollution measuring equipment.

In other action, the commission scheduled Dec. 14 as the date for the first hearing on whether to ease the state's air pollution rules for electric power plants in the St. Louis area.

2nd of 3 murder suspects arrested

NEW MADRID — The second of three suspects have been arrested in connection with the armed robbery and murder last Friday night of Kathleen Marie Evans, 17, at a Marston service station.

Eduardo Barrera, 23, was taken into custody Thursday in San Antonio, Tex., according to the information received at 5 p.m. by the New Madrid County Sheriff's Department.

Deputy Sheriff Willis "Bo" Wingo said he had received few details concerning the arrest, but expected to receive additional information today through a teletype message.

Still being sought is Reyes B. Barrera, 26-year-old brother of Eduardo Barrera.

The arrest Wednesday of Fred Cruz Garcia in Houston, Tex., as one of three Michigan men of Mexican descent who were being sought as suspects for an armed robbery and murder last Friday morning of a liquor store attendant in Beaver Dam, Wis., led to a warrant being issued for the three men in connection with the Marston crimes.

Garcia has reportedly given information to Texas police that linked the three with the shooting and robbery in New Madrid County.

Miss Evans, who was employed at Martin's Phillips 66 Service Station, located at the Interstate 55 and Route EE interchange near Marston, was killed by a single blast from a shotgun at close range.

Her body was found at 11:45 p.m., inside the station behind a counter and near an open cash register.

Deputy Sheriff Johnnie Martin, owner of the station, said $72.83 and eight gallons of gas were taken in the robbery.

Garrison case goes to jury

BLOOMFIELD — The question of the guilt or innocence of Dr. Norman A. Garrison on a first-degree murder charge, filed in connection with the Sept. 8, 1974 death of his former wife, went to the jury today with defense attorneys confident of an aquittal.

One of the attorneys representing Garrison Thursday said, "I feel as good now as I have ever felt at this stage of a law suit."

He added that the defense wanted the case to go to the jury Thursday night because they felt an early verdict would be returned.

Both the prosecution and defense finished their presentations Thursday as the Stoddard County Circuit Court room became more and more crowded. One estimate put the number of people crammed into every available inch of space at about 200.

One of the last witnesses to testify for the state was August Nilges, a finger print expert for the Missouri State Highway Patrol whose testimony proved helpful to both sides.

He identified a bloody fingerprint found on a fence outside the home where Lee Ann Garrison, 32, was found murdered in Kennett as being made by Garrison. Comparing the unknown print to a known print made by Garrison, Nilges said he found 15 points of comparison between the two and that the patrol considers 12 points as a positive identification.

Under cross-examination, however, he said the the proper methods for recording bloody fingerprints is to photograph them. Sgt. Gene Duckworth of the patrol, who conducted the original investigation at the scene had lifted the fingerprint by using powder and paste.

Officers who investigated at the scene have testified during the trial that the fingerprint was visible to the naked eye, but Nilges said it would be hard to tell which way the ridges run just by looking at it.

He said that if a print in blood would be made on the fence, the valleys of the finger would be predominate because the ridges of the finger would press into the surface like tires going through mud, but, in the print found on the fence, the ridges were predominant just the opposite of what it should be.

A defense attorney said Nilges was scheduled to be recalled as a defense witness, but the defense was satisfied to bring out the testimony through cross-examination.

The bloody fingerprint was the state's main piece of evidence tying Garrison to the crime.

Nilges also said a fingerprint found on a bed plank could not be identified.

The defense questioned a number of witnesses in an attempt to invalidate a bloody footprint the state had said was made by Garrison.

Dr. Ralph Rehm and Dr. Fuat H. Kandalaft both testified that they had examined Garrison's right foot, which the state claimed made the footprint in the Garrison home, and said the bloody footprint could not have been made by Garrison.

They said that, in their opinion, the second toe, which did not touch the floor in the bloody footprint, did not correspond to Garrison's second toe, which has a hammerhead deformity, meaning that it will touch the ground first when he walks.

Both doctors also said it was their opinion that Garrison has had the defect more than three years.

Rehm, who made footprints in ink in his office of Garrison's foot, said that they did not match the bloody footprint, and pointed out several differences.

Earlier in the trial, Kathy Richardson, a cousin of Lee Ann Garrison testified that she had seen Garrison make the four-toe print like the bloody one when they were swimming and that she had noticed the peculiarity when Garrison's daughter Lila pointed it out to her.

The defense countered her testimony by sending Lila Garrison, now 11 years old, to the stand. She said she had seen her father barefoot and that he had never made that kind of footprint, and she had not told Kathy Richardson that he did.

The defense had her draw the kind of print he did make. The crowd craned their heads and the benches creaked to see the girl draw a five-toe print.

Later, Kathry Richardson returned to the stand and said Lila was about 5- 6 years old when she told her of the funny footprint.

The defense had several law enforcement officers, who were present when Garrison was arrested in September 1974, take the stand, including Ralph F. Abrell, a desk sergeant for the Corinth, Miss., Police Department, Brooks Phillips, a U.S. marshal; and William Dodson, a U.S. magistrate from Mississippi.

All testified that, while they did not make a thorough medical examination, they could see no wounds or injuries on Garrison when he was brought in.

Garrison has maintained that he spent the night that Mrs. Garrison was murdered on a houseboat at Pickwick Lake near Corinth.

The defense presented several witnesses who testified they saw Garrison Sunday morning — the day Mrs. Garrison's body was found — one of whom claimed to have seen him as early as 7 to 7:15 a.m.

Only two persons, however, testified they knew where he was that night.

Ron Windsor, who owns the houseboat Garrison claims he spent the night on, testified that Garrison came on board Saturday evening, talked a while, then went to bed and spent all night on the boat.

The prosecution pointed out in cross-examination that Windsor and Garrison had been friends since childhood and that Windsor thought it seemed doubtful that Garrison could get a good night's sleep aboard a noisy houseboat while a party was going on.

The other person who testified to Garrison's whereabouts that night, Pam Miller, said she was on the boat that night and went to the bathroom, located near the bunks, and saw somebody on the top bunk.

W. D. Vickers, a Texas ranger who took the statement earlier from Mrs. Miller, said the woman told him that there was an object on the top bunk but she could not see it well, could see no face or movement and could not identify it as human.

The defense then placed Garrison on the stand. He said he went to the Windsor houseboat about 8 p.m. Sept. 7 and went to bed about 9 p.m. after taking sleeping pills, then woke up about 6 to 6:30 a.m. Sept. 8.

The defense attorney told him to look at the jury and asked him, "Did you kill Lee Ann Garrison?

"No, sir," Garrison replied.

"Did you have her killed?"

"No, sir," he answered.

Garrison also denied that the footprint in the hall of Mrs. Garrison's home was his. When asked about the fingerprint on the fence, he said, "I don't know, I wasn't there."

Store burglarized

DEXTER — Richard Ford reported to Dexter police at 2:11 a.m. today that his store, Richard Distributing, 26 E. Stoddard, had been broken into and $1,500 worth of watches and rings were missing.

Police said the store had been entered by breaking the front plate glass.

Ford said he was asleep in the back of the store at the time of the break-in, police said.

The police department is continuing its investigation.

Sikeston girl hurt in auto-train accident

A Sikeston High School senior, reportedly on her way to a volleyball game at the school field house, was hospitalized Thursday night after her car was struck by a Missouri Pacific locomotive on Linn Street.

Pamela Sue Gregory, 17, of 218 Dacus Drive was reported in good condition this morning at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Her car was struck in the side as she crossed the railroad side track leading into the Sikeston Cotton Seed Oil Mill on Linn Street at 5:55 p.m.

Her car was west bound and the locomotive was leaving the mill when the accident occurred, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Lathum resigns from patrol

Jerry Lathum, a trooper working out of the Missouri State Highway Patrol substation in Sikeston, submitted a letter of resignation this week, according to Capt. Wayne C. Brooks, commander of Troop E in Poplar Bluff.

Lathum, a seven-year veteran of the force, said only that he was looking for other employment, Brooks said. Lathum is now on vacation.

Brooks indicated the Sikeston substation would have to get by on current manpower until a new highway patrol class graduates and more manpower becomes available. He said he did not know when that would be.

Stage set for last presidential debate

Hanna said the paper work could be handled by the Sikeston and Chaffee housing authorities, then presented to the court for approval as the housing authority for rural areas of the county.

The Section 8 program assists families paying more than 25 per cent of their income for rent and utilities.

An example would be a family living in a good three- bedroom home which earns only $4,000 a year and pays rent of $150 a month plus utilities. This program could possibly pay the difference between 25 per cent of the family income — $1,000 — and the above gross rent.

Fair market rental price guidelines would be set by the County Court as the housing authority for rural areas and unincorporated communities.

Under the program, landlords who rent to tenants under this program would enter into a one-year or three-year lease agreement with the tenant and a five-year agreement with HUD.

The court then agreed to apply for housing authority status and to seek permission for 60 units to be subsidized under the program.

In addition, Mrs. Mitchell and Tanna Parrish, director of urban development in Charleston, told the court they felt a housing rehabilitation program should be started in the communities of Benton, Scott City and Illmo.

They said this would be an experimental program to show HUD the rehabilitation program could work in small communities. Funding, they said, could be obtained under Community Development Block Grant Program funds up to $400,000.

The housing officials asked the court to contact the mayors and councils of the three communities so the program possibilities could be presented to them.

The court members said the community leaders would be contacted and asked to attend a meeting on Nov. 4 at the county courthouse.

Parrish said the county could be the first in the country to sponsor a countywide rehabilitation program.

In other business, Clara Hanselman, Leon Schlitt and Elmer Seyer of Oran Route One asked the court about the clearing of Ditch No. 18 which runs along their property lines.

Some clearing has already been completed along the ditch property of Henry Eftink.

The court agreed to meet later in the day with the landowners, the county engineer and Danny Dumey, who cleared the ditch along the Eftink property.

Presiding Judge Louie Hirschowitz reported that the County Court has received petitions containing more than 1,100 signatures asking that a proposal establishing a county wide ambulance district be submitted to Scott County voters in an election.

Hirschowitz said the court would check the validity of the signatures on the petitions and set an election date which, most likely, would be April 5, 1977, in conjunction with the city elections.

Ruling on Noranda pollution postponed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A ruling on a controversial pollution case involving Noranda Aluminum, Inc., of New Madrid has been postponed until next month by the Missouri Air Conservation Commission.

The issue will be decided at its next meeting Nov. 17 in Kansas City, members ruled here Thursday.

The commission has voted once to allow the company to continue violating air pollution regulations because the over-all air in the New Madrid area purportedly meets federal regulations. But it is reconsidering that vote.

In final arguments Thursday, attorneys for Noranda and the air commission staff argued over whether the air in the New Madrid area really meets fedral standards.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Dan Summers argued that although the air meets primary standards, those necessary for good health, it violates more stringent secondary standards, those necessary to protect property and human welfare.

Attorneys for Noranda argued that it has not been proved that even the secondary standards for clean air have been violated consistently.

Noranda attorneys argued that the added pollution from the aluminum manufacturer was so small that it could not be detected by nearby air pollution measuring equipment.

In other action, the commission scheduled Dec. 14 as the date for the first hearing on whether to ease the state's air pollution rules for electric power plants in the St. Louis area.

2nd of 3 murder suspects arrested

NEW MADRID — The second of three suspects have been arrested in connection with the armed robbery and murder last Friday night of Kathleen Marie Evans, 17, at a Marston service station.

Eduardo Barrera, 23, was taken into custody Thursday in San Antonio, Tex., according to the information received at 5 p.m. by the New Madrid County Sheriff's Department.

Deputy Sheriff Willis "Bo" Wingo said he had received few details concerning the arrest, but expected to receive additional information today through a teletype message.

The arrest Wednesday of Fred Cruz Garcia in Houston, Tex., as one of three Michigan men of Mexican descent who were being sought as suspects for an armed robbery and murder last Friday morning of a liquor store attendant in Beaver Dam, Wis., led to a warrant being issued for the three men in connection with the Marston crimes.

Garcia has reportedly given information to Texas police that linked the three with the shooting and robbery in New Madrid County.

Miss Evans, who was employed at Martin's Phillips 66 Service Station, located at the Interstate 55 and Route EE interchange near Marston, was killed by a single blast from a shotgun at close range.

Her body was found at 11:45 p.m., inside the station behind a counter and near an open cash register.

Deputy Sheriff Johnnie Martin, owner of the station, said $72.83 and eight gallons of gas were taken in the robbery.

Store burglarized

DEXTER — Richard Ford reported to Dexter police at 2:11 a.m. today that his store, Richard Distributing, 26 E. Stoddard, had been broken into and $1,500 worth of watches and rings were missing.

Police said the store had been entered by breaking the front plate glass.

Ford said he was asleep in the back of the store at the time of the break-in, police said.

The police department is continuing its investigation.

A Sikeston High School senior, reportedly on her way to a volleyball game at the school field house, was hospitalized Thursday night after her car was struck by a Missouri Pacific locomotive on Linn Street.

Pamela Sue Gregory, 17, of 218 Dacus Drive was reported in good condition this morning at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Her car was struck in the side as she crossed the railroad side track leading into the Sikeston Cotton Seed Oil Mill on Linn Street at 5:55 p.m.

Her car was west bound and the locomotive was leaving the mill when the accident occurred, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Lathum resigns from patrol

Jerry Lathum, a trooper working out of the Missouri State Highway Patrol substation in Sikeston, submitted a letter of resignation this week, according to Capt. Wayne C. Brooks, commander of Troop E in Poplar Bluff.

Lathum, a seven-year veteran of the force, said only that he was looking for other employment, Brooks said. Lathum is now on vacation.

Brooks indicated the Sikeston substation would have to get by on current manpower until a new highway patrol class graduates and more manpower becomes available. He said he did not know when that would be.

DETENTE VERSUS PEACE

A recent issue of the American Security Council's monthly publication "Washington Report" contains a review of a most important book on the subject of detente and peace.

Entitled Peace Endangered: The Reality of Detente (Sage Publications, 1976), the book is written by Dr. R. J. Rummel, a professor at the University of Hawaii. He was the principal investigator for a study which used sophisticated computer techniques to analyze the causes of war. The results refute the theories which underlie the policy of detente followed by Dr. Henry Kissinger.

Rummel's computers demolish two assumptions of detente, 1) that cooperative behavior patterns between nations correlate with reduced likelihood of conflict, and 2)that restraining military power will reduce tensions and the risk of war. Not so. Using a computer study of almost 20,000 cases of bilateral interaction between countries, the conclusion reached is that we cannot hope to buy friendship with the Soviets or anyone else with deals, agreements, give-aways, or cultural exchanges. And as to seeking peace by reducing our military spending, Dr. Rummel maintains: "Peace results from political dominance — a dominance not alone in military capability, but also in the strength of a nation's interests and the force of its will. Restraint of American military capability and elaboration of the virtues and peaceful consequences of detente have devitalized the interests and crippled the will which has sustained peace. The balance of power thereby has been seriously altered, and as a result war is more likely, not less."

These conclusions Dr. Rummel backs up with a sober warning about the growth of Soviet military power: "Our ability to deter a Soviet first strike is rapidly deteriorating. And around 1980, and perhaps as early as 1977, the Soviets will have a preclusive first strike capability."

Dr. Rummel's findings should be studied by all Americans, and especially by the two presidential candidates.

Government regulations could mean the end of some pesticide companies. If this occurred, many smaller manufacturers would be forced out of business.

SIXTY YEARS OF TAXES: STEADY RISE

The income tax has come a long way since the adoption of the Sixteenth Amendment in 1913. It has grown from a 15-page statute levying taxes at rates from 1 per cent to 6 per cent to an Internal Revenue Code requiring 1,700 pages of the United States Code and 6,000 pages of regulations levying income taxes at rates up to 70 per cent.

NO TIME TO RUSH

With the cloud of Watergate and the prospect of a lengthy impeachment trial in the Senate no longer a time-consuming Congressional preoccupation, legislative business is once again underway. With election day looming on the horizon, some of the more highly-publicized and politically-attractive proposals are on the front burner. Though passage is now unlikely this year, National Health Insurance (NHI) has been one of these.

Around 79 different bills in the NHI category, involving widely different roles for the federal government in the U.S. health care system, are pending in Congress. Some would virtually destroy the existing system, transforming patients into numbers and doctors into civil servants, and replacing private insurance-- which already amounts to a National Health Insurance system-- with a federal program. Various bills would provide coverage for certain types of medical problems, such as catastrophic illness, while others would work across a wide front in using taxpayers' funds to broaden the availability of health care services in cooperation with the high-quality, private medical system which we already possess. It is imperative that Congress take its time in designing a National Health Insurance proposal, in conducting its hearings and in consideration of the various approaches. The concern, at this stage, should be 100 per cent toward designing a type of federal participation and NHI that will strengthen rather than strangle those who are already delivering and funding the highest quality of medical care to the American people.

Medical care cannot be free any more than anything else in life. It must be financed by the individual receiving it, through tax dollars or through a combination of both, in which federal dollars are used to make adequate medical services available to those who would not otherwise have them. Now is not the time to rush into National Health Insurance just because some thing it is "the thing to do." The United States can ill afford more political misjudgment that drastically affects its economic life--least of all in the field of medicine.

NEW DAY IS NEEDED

One blessing has come from the nation's economic and political travail. The silver-tongued politician of many promises and high tax spending habits should find it a little harder to sell his wares to disillusioned voters. Leaders are appearing in industry and public life who stress sanity and balance.

One of these, a foresty industry executive, has made a notable Address, entitled "Back to Basics." He said, "Basics' can be characterized...as the essentials for rational survival. Man's most critical material requirements are: warmth, health, and physical security....For example, I think it is now being recognized that the high price of indulging the obstructionist tactics of an overzealous few who blocked the Alaska pipeline can scarcely be justified. We must think hard about how much forest land our nation can afford to lock up in wilderness-- or lock up in the courts-- because some few of our citizens are insensitive to the needs of the many for adequate housing..."

Many of the shortages and consequent price dislocations in the marketplace are traceable to the disruptive "put down" of the American business system. No system can function for long under such hostile pressure. It is time to reassert belief in our American system of government and enterprise. It is also time to fill public offices with public servants who have enough conviction to support private enterprise and representative government.

ANOTHER CHANCE FOR LIFE

"Research oriented" is a term that has been applied frequently to the pharmaceutical industry of the United States. Insight into the meaning of research oriented can be gained from "Prescription Drugs and Health Care"-- a lengthy white paper on the drug industry, published after months of study by one of the nation's leading drug firms.

In a section of the paper, devoted to research and drug evaluation, the company takes figures from its own laboratories where research and development efforts involve 2,400 people, 700with advanced scientific degrees ranging from cytogeneticists to biophysicists, including 65 physicians. The yearly cost of this research organization is more than $60 million. Such are the physical aspects of the research of one major company. But as the white paper says: "It takes more than people and money....A successful research organization depends on the skillful management of innovation, a skill that accumulates gradually over (the) years and cannot be arbitrarily created in, or transferred to, another research group." The closely integrated research efforts of this company are directed toward the discovery of "breakthrough" drugs that improve the treatment of serious illnesses.

This company's researchers are typical of the thousands of scientists in the pharmaceutical industry throughout the nation. These scientists study and reject 8,000 compounds for every one that becomes a new medicine. As an example of what intensive drug research can do, the white paper tells of how one of the company's scientists helped initiate research aimed at an improved treatment for heart failure. The new treatment involved systematic chemical modification of adrenaline, which eventually produced a new drug that has adrenaline's capacity to increase the force of the heartbeat but without the sometimes lethal tendency of adrenaline to raise blood pressure and cause irregular heart thythms.

No one will ever know how many lives the new drug has saved. But it is a perfect illustration of what is meant by the term research oriented drug industry. In its most literal sense, it means a chance for life.

NO-FAULT DIVORCE

MISSISSIPPI LAWMAKERS have provided a progressive example for their Tennessee counterparts by adopting a "no-fault" divorce bill.

The legislation, which would permit a couple to dissolve a marriage if both parties want it without the dishonest alleging of cruel and inhuman treatment, now awaits Gov. Cliff Finch's signature to become law.

By passing the law, the Mississippi legislators have recognized the hypocrisy of demanding ficticious grounds to effect inevitable dissolution. Divorce under any circumstances is an unhappy event, but it doesn't help matters to put the participants through a courtroom charade.

The issue has been considered several times in Tennessee.

During the last session of the General Assembly, legislators wouldn't even let the matter come up for discussion or vote.

The result is that in Tennessee divorce is still a messy business causing crowded court calendars and undue animosity in cases which would otherwise be uncontested.

Instant Political Party
How Labor's 'Soft Money' Operates A Hard National Get-Out-the-Vote-Machine

Actually it's dues money. By the millions.

Under a recent law there isn't any limit to how much cash can be taken from any union's central treasury to be used to communicate with tens of millions of members -- and their families-- to get them out to vote. In today's final stretch, the war cry, of course, is Jimmy Carter and Fritz Mondale.

So, there will be at least four million labor dollars just for the final get-out-the-vote operation on election day. That's a minimum of $4 million alone for labor's 50 "state" federattions. Half from George Meany's Committee on Political Education (COPE), matching the funds gathered statewide from union treasuries.

"Soft money" shouldn't be confused with "hard money." The latter cash springs from voluntary contributions. Some unions go for $2 a member which theoretically could raise almost $30 million. "Hard money" can be contributed to federal candidates all the way up the line to the presidential slate.

But it's the "soft money" which turns American labor -- especially in this election -- into the third major party. An instant party. This is the money which pays for the final effort during the final hour before the final closing of the polling places.

It pays for the tens of thousands of precinct workers; for the around-the-clock computer printout of statistics on millions of members; for the "walking around" doorbell ringers; for the phone banks, the car pools, the babysitters, the buddy system reaching for the aged, the infirm andall who can physically make it to the polls on Nov. 2.

Thus, the AFL-CIO building here becomes an instant national party headquarters -- easily a match for the national committees of the Democratic and Republican parties, and Jimmy Carter's South in Atlanta and Plains.

For example, this "soft money" pays for a special pile-driving push, with the wham of the Cincinnati Reds, in Texas, where the labor strategists believe the balance of power may be, electorally. And soft dollars are going for the heavy get-the-members-out blitz in 16 pivotal industrialized states such as New York, California, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, and one spokesman said, "We aren't overlooking Wisconsin, either." This push is expected to stonewall the President Ford Committee's campaign in 10 such states.

Labor's instant political party pulsates the year round. It's a machine for all seasons. No one has to gear or rev it up or "committee" it or name chairpersons. They're all in place. Some have been there since Franklin Roosevelt worried about carrying New York state in 1936 and launched the American Labor Party which went left and sour. Then they unleashed the New York State Liberal Party. All one ball of hot election wax, if I can mix that one.

Right across the nation there are city and state central federations of labor, hundreds of union headquarters and some 500,000 officials in some 50,000 AFL-CIO locals. Add to this the "soft money," heavily equipped union buildings and already installed telephones and all you need are the members to swarm in after hours and hit the wires. In New York City alone, labor has distributed 1 million leaflets "in the shops" -- especially to black and Hispanic workers.

And there are legions of volunteers. Especially the retirees. For example, they check the phone numbers during the day and pass them on to the active workers in the evening. Thus, though little noticed, the Senior Citizens For Carter-Mondale Committee, with some three million members, is jogging right along under the veteran eye of Nelson Cruikshank, himself a retired AFL-CIO Social Security Department director. Now he is president of the National Council of Senior Citizens from which he is on leave until Nov. 3.

It's all labor's operation -- the retirees, the black A. Philip Randolph Institute, the youth's Frontlash, the Hispanics' Labor Council for Latin American Advancement, and the Women's Activities Department of COPE, the overall instant party directed by the continent-hopping Al Barkan, who is George Meany's Hamilton Jordan (who is Jimmy Carter's Al Barkan).

It's all coordinated by a joint chiefs of staff known as the Steering Committee, a group of national labor leaders (AFL-CIO vice presidents) which has been conferring every second Tuesday in Meany's headquarters.

This group coordinates the expenditure of "soft money" on such national broadcasts as Meany plans -- the latest of which were rejected by Columbia Broadcasting System. The network junked its agreement with the AFL-CIO on the theory that no Meany air-time talk could be nonpartisan. The movement denounced this as curtailment of its free speech.

And there are scores of other high-powered operations such as the United Labor Committee to Elect Carter- Mondale, launched by the United Auto Workers and the Michigan state AFL-CIO to take President Ford's home state from him.

And thre are election committees operated by the 1.8 million member National Education Assn., the miners and the teamsters.

It's silly to attempt to put a money value on such vast operations. It's taken 150 years to guild "the movement."

Today it's a party in all but name.

That's why I'm surprised when visiting foreign labor chiefs now observing our presidential elections are surprised when, on arrival, they ask why American labor doesn't have a third party of its own.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

NOAH'S ARK

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley New Service

The 20th Century has seen many attacks challenging the historical accuracy of the Bible

However, scientific advances may actually provide modern proof of biblical revelations. Scientists' examinations of the Holy Shroud and expeditions to Mt. Ararat appear to have confirmed two of the great events of the Scriptures: the crucifixioh of Christ and the landing of Noah's Ark.

Some 14,000 feet high up on Mt. Ararat in eastern Turkey is a giant wooden ship, portions of which have been seen by about 200 people in the last century.

How did it get there? There is no nearby source of timber. No trees grow on this mountain or within a hundred miles of the ship

It is not logical that any ancient civilization would build an immense rectangular wooden vessel, thought to be about 450 feet long, 75 feet wide and 45 feet high, near the top of a high, barren mountain peak.

Mt. Ararat is inaccessible for many reasons. Not only is it an icy and difficult mountain to climb, but it is located in a restricted military zone close to the Turkish-Russian border, just 40 miles from a Soviet missile base.

The Turkish minister of the interior has banned most of the expeditions that have sought to climb Mt. Ararat in the last six years to examine the ark.

The Russians are very suspicious and will not let any American airplanes or helicopters fly over Mt. Ararat, being convinced that they would be part of an espionage plot.

A few expeditions have reached the ark on foot and brought back pieces of wood that scientists tell us date from the time of Noah. Biblical scholars generally agree that the Great Flood occurred about 5,000 years ago.

The French archaeologist Fernand Navarra made several expeditions up Mt. Ararat beginning in 1952, when he found a large mass of dark wood embedded in the glacier about 13,000 feet high.

In 1955 and 1968, Navarra brought back timbers found in the ice of Mt. Ararat. They were examined by Nobel Prize winner Dr. Melvin A. Cook, who concluded that the wood was of the right age to have been Noah's Ark.

Among the five pieces of planking that Navarra brought back was a five-foot beam that had been hand-hewn and squared, and had mortise and tenon joints. The beam matched the wood recovered from the ark by James Bryce in 1876.

The Center of Forestry Research and Analysis in Paris confirmed that the wood was white oak and had an age of about 4,500 years. It is a type of white oak that grows only in the Mediterranean region where Noah is believed to have built the ark. Other wood experts also estimate the age of the wood to be about 5,000 years.

In 1973 Thomas B. Turner of the McDonnell Douglas Co. in St. Louis told of an earth resources technology satellite(ERTS) photograph that possibly showed Noah's Ark in the same quadrant on Mt. Ararat where previous ground explorers had found the hand-hewn timbers.

The search for Noah's Ark continues to be a fascination to many people, including Dr. John Montgomery who has climbed Mt. Ararat many times. He and Tom Crosser, who has photographed the gunwale planking of the ark's bow in the ice near the top of Mt. Ararat, are convinced that civilization was saved, just as the Bible teaches, by Noah and his ark at the time of the Great Flood.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Taxpayers Sweeten Gamblers' Pots

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Gambling is the nation's most lucrative business, with a staggering $67 billion annual turnover, the largest source of revenue for organized crime. Yet last year, the Treasury Dept. didn't start a tax audit on a single gambler.

It permitted literally hundreds of millions of dollars in gambling taxes to go unpaid. The honest taxpayers, of course, were required to make up the difference.

The gambling tax laws weren't enforced last year, it turns out, because of bureaucratic buck passing. Two of the Treasury's enforcement agencies, the Internal Revenue Service and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, waited all year for each other to do the investigative work.

The snafu developed in December, 1974. Previously, the IRS had the responsibility to see that gamblers paid their wagering taxes. The law requires professional gamblers to buy a $500 occupational tax stamp each year and to pay a 2 per cent excise tax on their take.

But IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander, curiously, wanted to shift the responsibility to ATF, which has no tax specialists. This was opposed by the IRS intelligence director, John Olzewski, whose agents have the skills to nail the tax-evading gamblers.

Then in late December, 1974, Olzewski took a vacation. While he was gone, Alexander signed a memo authorizing the transfer. He also persuaded Treasury Secretary William Simon to make it official.

That ended the enforcement of the gambling tax laws for the next year. The Justice Dept. got 900 gambling convictions in 1975. State and local authorities made another 13,000 arrests, more or less. Almost all the convicted gamblers owed back taxes.

The Justice Dept. routinely forwarded the cases to the IRS for tax assessment. But the IRS ignored them all last year. Alexander claimed that ATF had the responsibility to investigate the failure of these gamblers to pay their wagering taxes.

Justice complained bitterly that the IRS wasn't cooperating. An internal Justice memo charged that the IRS wasn't even bothering to keep statistics on strike force gambling cases.

Finally, Rep. Charles Vanik, D.-Ohio, who heads the House IRS oversight subcommittee, brought the problem to Simon's attention. The Treasury Secretary immediately ordered the IRS to continue their tax assessment responsibility for 1976.

Some shocking statistics dramatize, meanwhile, how the gamblers are defying the law. The definition of a gambler is somewhat vague under the law. But with certain exceptions, anyone who earns more than $500 a year from gambling is supposed to pay the special gambling taxes.

Yet across the nation, only 1,297 gamblers have purchased their federal occupational stamp. If these figures are to be believed, there are only three professsonal gamblers in New York, only three in Florida. There are none at all in Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Hawaii and New Jersey. Even the gambling state of Nevada has only 120 registered gamblers.

Clearly, there are wholesale violations. IRS now has the responsibility for tax assessment. ATF still is supposed to take the criminal cases. Neither agency is doing its job. They blame one another, and both blame the Treasury Dept.

Meanwhile, the IRS has been hounding honest citizens for back taxes while the gamblers escaped enforcement and hundreds of millions of dollars slipped through the Treasury's fingers.

Footnote: It is possible that the IRS audited the taxes of some gamblers last year as part of its income tax audits. There were no audits, however, of gambling tax cases. The voluntary revenue from gambling taxes for the first nine months of 1975, incidentally, amounted to an insignificant tax rate of less than 1 per cent.

AID TO SMUGGLERS: Reports have reached Washington that Thailand's military brass have provided helicopters from the United States to rescue wounded drug smugglers.

The smugglers have been wounded in the opium skirmishes in the "Golden Triangle," the remote, rugged mountainous area of Burma, Thailand and Laos where the opium armies hide out. For 30 years, they have been fighting miniwars negotiating treaties and financing their opium operations like sovereign states.

The most formidable opium armies are commanded by two legendary generals known a "Li" and "Tuan," both Nationalist Chinese brigands familiar with the tricky trails and deep gorges of the "Golden Triangle."

They have had trouble getting medical treatment for their injured troops after opium skirmishes. As a result, the trained troops under their commands have dwindled.

But Rep. Lester Wolff, D.-N.Y., chairman of the House Narcotics Committee, has learned that the two opium generals are now being assisted by high Thai military authorities. According to Wolff's information, the Thai brass have used U.S. helicopters to conduct hospital lifts for the injured opium troops. Once healed, the men make their way back to the mountains.

The new military junta in Thailand reportedly is more sympathetic to the drug smugglers than was the deposed elected government, which was beginning to cooperate with the U.S. in curtailing the flow of heroin from the "Golden Triangle."

Footnote: Accurate figures are impossible to measure the shadowy drug operation in the remote Asian hinterlands. But U.S. experts estimate as much as 30 per cent of the heroin sold on U.S. streets originate in the "Golden Triangle." Most comes from Mexico.

DETENTE VERSUS PEACE

A recent issue of the American Security Council's monthly publication "Washington Report" contains a review of a most important book on the subject of detente and peace.

Entitled Peace Endangered: The Reality of Detente (Sage Publications, 1976), the book is written by Dr. R. J. Rummel, a professor at the University of Hawaii. He was the principal investigator for a study which used sophisticated computer techniques to analyze the causes of war. The results refute the theories which underlie the policy of detente followed by Dr. Henry Kissinger.

Rummel's computers demolish two assumptions of detente, 1) that cooperative behavior patterns between nations correlate with reduced likelihood of conflict, and 2)that restraining military power will reduce tensions and the risk of war. Not so. Using a computer study of almost 20,000 cases of bilateral interaction between countries, the conclusion reached is that we cannot hope to buy friendship with the Soviets or anyone else with deals, agreements, give-aways, or cultural exchanges. And as to seeking peace by reducing our military spending, Dr. Rummel maintains: "Peace results from political dominance — a dominance not alone in military capability, but also in the strength of a nation's interests and the force of its will. Restraint of American military capability and elaboration of the virtues and peaceful consequences of detente have devitalized the interests and crippled the will which has sustained peace. The balance of power thereby has been seriously altered, and as a result war is more likely, not less."

These conclusions Dr. Rummel backs up with a sober warning about the growth of Soviet military power: "Our ability to deter a Soviet first strike is rapidly deteriorating. And around 1980, and perhaps as early as 1977, the Soviets will have a preclusive first strike capability."

Dr. Rummel's findings should be studied by all Americans, and especially by the two presidential candidates.

REGULATORY PLAGUE HITS PESTICIDES

Government regulations could mean the end of some pesticide companies. A recent study shows that 40 per cent of current research spending in the industry is going for "defensive" efforts to meet new regulations, and that this figure could rise to 80 per cent. If this occurred, many smaller manufacturers would be forced out of business.

SIXTY YEARS OF TAXES: STEADY RISE

The income tax has come a long way since the adoption of the Sixteenth Amendment in 1913. It has grown from a 15-page statute levying taxes at rates from 1 per cent to 6 per cent to an Internal Revenue Code requiring 1,700 pages of the United States Code and 6,000 pages of regulations levying income taxes at rates up to 70 per cent.

NO TIME TO RUSH

With the cloud of Watergate and the prospect of a lengthy impeachment trial in the Senate no longer a time-consuming Congressional preoccupation, legislative business is once again underway. With election day looming on the horizon, some of the more highly-publicized and politically-attractive proposals are on the front burner. Though passage is now unlikely this year, National Health Insurance (NHI) has been one of these.

Around 79 different bills in the NHI category, involving widely different roles for the federal government in the U.S. health care system, are pending in Congress. Some would virtually destroy the existing system, transforming patients into numbers and doctors into civil servants, and replacing private insurance-- which already amounts to a National Health Insurance system-- with a federal program. Various bills would provide coverage for certain types of medical problems, such as catastrophic illness, while others would work across a wide front in using taxpayers' funds to broaden the availability of health care services in cooperation with the high-quality, private medical system which we already possess. It is imperative that Congress take its time in designing a National Health Insurance proposal, in conducting its hearings and in consideration of the various approaches. The concern, at this stage, should be 100 per cent toward designing a type of federal participation and NHI that will strengthen rather than strangle those who are already delivering and funding the highest quality of medical care to the American people.

Medical care cannot be free any more than anything else in life. It must be financed by the individual receiving it, through tax dollars or through a combination of both, in which federal dollars are used to make adequate medical services available to those who would not otherwise have them. Now is not the time to rush into National Health Insurance just because some thing it is "the thing to do." The United States can ill afford more political misjudgment that drastically affects its economic life--least of all in the field of medicine.

NEW DAY IS NEEDED

One blessing has come from the nation's economic and political travail. The silver-tongued politician of many promises and high tax spending habits should find it a little harder to sell his wares to disillusioned voters. Leaders are appearing in industry and public life who stress sanity and balance.

One of these, a foresty industry executive, has made a notable Address, entitled "Back to Basics." He said, "Basics' can be characterized...as the essentials for rational survival. Man's most critical material requirements are: warmth, health, and physical security....For example, I think it is now being recognized that the high price of indulging the obstructionist tactics of an overzealous few who blocked the Alaska pipeline can scarcely be justified. We must think hard about how much forest land our nation can afford to lock up in wilderness-- or lock up in the courts-- because some few of our citizens are insensitive to the needs of the many for adequate housing..."

Many of the shortages and consequent price dislocations in the marketplace are traceable to the disruptive "put down" of the American business system. No system can function for long under such hostile pressure. It is time to reassert belief in our American system of government and enterprise. It is also time to fill public offices with public servants who have enough conviction to support private enterprise and representative government.

ANOTHER CHANCE FOR LIFE

"Research oriented" is a term that has been applied frequently to the pharmaceutical industry of the United States. Insight into the meaning of research oriented can be gained from "Prescription Drugs and Health Care"-- a lengthy white paper on the drug industry, published after months of study by one of the nation's leading drug firms.

In a section of the paper, devoted to research and drug evaluation, the company takes figures from its own laboratories where research and development efforts involve 2,400 people, 700with advanced scientific degrees ranging from cytogeneticists to biophysicists, including 66 physicians. The yearly cost of this research organization is more than $80 million. Such are the physical aspects of the research of one major company. But as the white paper says: "It takes more than people and money....A successful research organization depends on the skillful management of innovation, a skill that accumulates gradually over (the) years and cannot be arbitrarily created in, or transferred to, another research group." The closely integrated research efforts of this company are directed toward the discovery of "breakthrough" drugs that improve the treatment of serious illnesses.

This company's researchers are typical of the thousands of scientists in the pharmaceutical industry throughout the nation. These scientists study and reject 8,000 compounds for every one that becomes a new medicine. As an example of what intensive drug research can do, the white paper tells of how one of the company's scientists helped initiate research aimed at an improved treatment for heart failure. The new treatment involved systematic chemical modification of adrenaline, which eventually produced a new drug that has adrenaline's capacity to increase the force of the heartbeat but without the sometimes lethal tendency of adrenaline to raise blood pressure and cause irregular heart thythms.

No one will ever know how many lives the new drug has saved. But it is a perfect illustration of what is meant by the term research oriented drug industry. In its most literal sense, it means a chance for life.

NO-FAULT DIVORCE

MISSISSIPPI LAWMAKERS have provided a progressive example for their Tennessee counterparts by adopting a "no-fault" divorce bill.

The legislation, which would permit a couple to dissolve a marriage if both parties want it without the dishonest alleging of cruel and inhuman treatment, now awaits Gov. Cliff Finch's signature to become law.

By passing the law, the Mississippi legislators have recognized the hypocrisy of demanding ficticious grounds to effect inevitable dissolution. Divorce under any circumstances is an unhappy event, but it doesn't help matters to put the participants through a courtroom charade.

The issue has been considered several times in Tennessee.

During the last session of the General Assembly, legislators wouldn't even let the matter come up for discussion or vote.

The result is that in Tennessee divorce is still a messy business causing crowded court calendars and undue animosity in cases which would otherwise be uncontested.

Inside Labor

Instant Political Party

How Labor's 'Soft Money' Operates A Hard National Get-Out-the-Vote-Machine

Actually it's dues money. By the millions.

Under a recent law there isn't any limit to how much cash can be taken from any union's central treasury to be used to communicate with tens of millions of members -- and their families-- to get them out to vote. In today's final stretch, the war cry, of course, is Jimmy Carter and Fritz Mondale.

So, there will be at least four million labor dollars just for the final get-out-the-vote operation on election day. That's a minimum of $4 million alone for labor's 50 "state" federattions. Half from George Meany's Committee on Political Education (COPE), matching the funds gathered statewide from union treasuries.

"Soft money" shouldn't be confused with "hard money." The latter cash springs from voluntary contributions. Some unions go for $2 a member which theoretically could raise almost $30 million. "Hard money" can be contributed to federal candidates all the way up the line to the presidential slate.

But it's the "soft money" which turns American labor -- especially in this election -- into the third major party. An instant party. This is the money which pays for the final effort during the final hour before the final closing of the polling places.

It pays for the tens of thousands of precinct workers; for the around-the-clock computer printout of statistics on millions of members; for the "walking around" doorbell ringers; for the phone banks, the car pools, the babysitters, the buddy system reaching for the aged, the infirm and all who can physically make it to the polls on Nov. 2.

Thus, the AFL-CIO building here becomes an instant national party headquarters -- easily a match for the national committees of the Democratic and Republican parties, and Jimmy Carter's South in Atlanta and Plains.

For example, this "soft money" pays for a special pile-driving push, with the wham of the Cincinnati Reds, in Texas, where the labor strategists believe the balance of power may be, electorally. And soft dollars are going for the heavy get-the-members-out blitz in 16 pivotal industrialized states such as New York, California, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, and one spokesman said, "We aren't overlooking Wisconsin, either." This push is expected to stonewall the President Ford Committee's campaign in 10 such states.

Labor's instant political party pulsates the year round. It's a machine for all seasons. No one has to gear or rev it up or "committee" it or name chairpersons. They're all in place. Some have been there since Franklin Roosevelt worried about carrying New York state in 1936 and launched the American Labor Party which went left and sour. Then they unleashed the New York State Liberal Party. All one ball of hot election wax, if I can mix that one.

Right across the nation there are city and state central federations of labor, hundreds of union headquarters and some 500,000 officials in some 50,000 AFL-CIO locals. Add to this the "soft money," heavily equipped union buildings and already installed telephones and all you need are the members to swarm in after hours and hit the wires. In New York City alone, labor has distributed 1 million leaflets "in the shops" -- especially to black and Hispanic workers.

And there are legions of volunteers. Especially the retirees. For example, they check the phone numbers during the day and pass them on to the active workers in the evening. Thus, though little noticed, the Senior Citizens For Carter-Mondale Committee, with some three million members, is jogging right along under the veteran eye of Nelson Cruikshank, himself a retired AFL-CIO Social Security Department director. Now he is president of the National Council of Senior Citizens from which he is on leave until Nov. 3.

It's all labor's operation -- the retirees, the black A. Philip Randolph Institute, the youth's Frontlash, the Hispanics' Labor Council for Latin American Advancement, and the Women's Activities Department of COPE, the overall instant party directed by the continent-hopping Al Barkan, who is George Meany's Hamilton Jordan (who is Jimmy Carter's Al Barkan).

It's all coordinated by a joint chiefs of staff known as the Steering Committee, a group of national labor leaders (AFL-CIO vice presidents) which has been conferring every second Tuesday in Meany's headquarters.

This group coordinates the expenditure of "soft money" on such national broadcasts as Meany plans -- the latest of which were rejected by Columbia Broadcasting System. The network junked its agreement with the AFL-CIO on the theory that no Meany air-time talk could be nonpartisan. The movement denounced this as curtailment of its free speech.

And there are scores of other high-powered operations such as the United Labor Committee to Elect Carter- Mondale, launched by the United Auto Workers and the Michigan state AFL-CIO to take President Ford's home state from him.

And thre are election committees operated by the 1.8 million member National Education Assn., the miners and the teamsters.

It's silly to attempt to put a money value on such vast operations. It's taken 150 years to guild "the movement."

Today it's a party in all but name.

That's why I'm surprised when visiting foreign labor chiefs now observing our presidential elections are surprised when, on arrival, they ask why American labor doesn't have a third party of its own.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

NOAH'S ARK

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley New Service

The 20th Century has seen many attacks challenging the historical accuracy of the Bible

However, scientific advances may actually provide modern proof of biblical revelations. Scientists' examinations of the Holy Shroud and expeditions to Mt. Ararat appear to have confirmed two of the great events of the Scriptures: the crucifixion of Christ and the landing of Noah's Ark.

Some 14,000 feet high up on Mt. Ararat in eastern Turkey is a giant wooden ship, portions of which have been seen by about 200 people in the last century.

How did it get there? There is no nearby source of timber. No trees grow on this mountain or within a hundred miles of the ship

It is not logical that any ancient civilization would build an immense rectangular wooden vessel, thought to be about 450 feet long, 75 feet wide and 45 feet high, near the top of a high, barren mountain peak.

Mt. Ararat is inaccessible for many reasons. Not only is it an icy and difficult mountain to climb, but it is located in a restricted military zone close to the Turkish-Russian border, just 40 miles from a Soviet missile base.

The Turkish minister of the interior has banned most of the expeditions that have sought to climb Mt. Ararat in the last six years to examine the ark.

The Russians are very suspicious and will not let any American airplanes or helicopters fly over Mt. Ararat, being convinced that they would be part of an espionage plot.

A few expeditions have reached the ark on foot and brought back pieces of wood that scientists tell us date from the time of Noah. Biblical scholars generally agree that the Great Flood occurred about 5,000 years ago.

The French archaeologist Fernand Navarra made several expeditions up Mt. Ararat beginning in 1952, when he found a large mass of dark wood embedded in the glacier about 13,000 feet high.

In 1955 and 1968, Navarra brought back timbers found in the ice of Mt. Ararat. They were examined by Nobel Prize winner Dr. Melvin A. Cook, who concluded that the wood was of the right age to have been Noah's Ark.

Among the five pieces of planking that Navarra brought back was a five-foot beam that had been hand-hewn and squared, and had mortise and tenon joints. The beam matched the wood recovered from the ark by James Bryce in 1876.

The Center of Forestry Research and Analysis in Paris confirmed that the wood was white oak and had an age of about 4,500 years. It is a type of white oak that grows only in the Mediterranean region where Noah is believed to have built the ark. Other wood experts also estimate the age of the wood to be about 5,000 years.

In 1973 Thomas B. Turner of the McDonnell Douglas Co. in St. Louis told of an earth resources technology satellite(ERTS) photograph that possibly showed Noah's Ark in the same quadrant on Mt. Ararat where previous ground explorers had found the hand-hewn timbers.

The search for Noah's Ark continues to be a fascination to many people, including Dr. John Montgomery who has climbed Mt. Ararat many times. He and Tom Crosser, who has photographed the gunwale planking of the ark's bow in the ice near the top of Mt. Ararat, are convinced that civilization was saved, just as the Bible teaches, by Noah and his ark at the time of the Great Flood.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Taxpayers Sweeten Gamblers' Pots

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Gambling is the nation's most lucrative business, with a staggering $67 billion annual turnover, the largest source of revenue for organized crime. Yet last year, the Treasury Dept. didn't start a tax audit on a single gambler.

It permitted literally hundreds of millions of dollars in gambling taxes to go unpaid. The honest taxpayers, of course, were required to make up the difference.

The gambling tax laws weren't enforced last year, it turns out, because of bureaucratic buck passing. Two of the Treasury's enforcement agencies, the Internal Revenue Service and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, waited all year for each other to do the investigative work.

The snafu developed in December, 1974. Previously, the IRS had the responsibility to see that gamblers paid their wagering taxes. The law requires professional gamblers to buy a $500 occupational tax stamp each year and to pay a 2 per cent excise tax on their take.

But IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander, curiously, wanted to shift the responsibility to ATF, which has no tax specialists. This was opposed by the IRS intelligence director, John Olzewski, whose agents have the skills to nail the tax-evading gamblers.

Then in late December, 1974, Olzewski took a vacation. While he was gone, Alexander signed a memo authorizing the transfer. He also persuaded Treasury Secretary William Simon to make it official.

That ended the enforcement of the gambling tax laws for the next year. The Justice Dept. got 900 gambling convictions in 1975. State and local authorities made another 13,000 arrests, more or less. Almost all the convicted gamblers owed back taxes.

The Justice Dept. routinely forwarded the cases to the IRS for tax assessment. But the IRS ignored them all last year. Alexander claimed that ATF had the responsibility to investigate the failure of these gamblers to pay their wagering taxes.

Justice complained bitterly that the IRS wasn't cooperating. An internal Justice memo charged that the IRS wasn't even bothering to keep statistics on strike force gambling cases.

Finally, Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, who heads the House IRS oversight subcommittee, brought the problem to Simon's attention. The Treasury Secretary immediately ordered the IRS to continue their tax assessment responsibility for 1976.

Some shocking statistics dramatize, meanwhile, how the gamblers are defying the law. The definition of a gambler is somewhat vague under the law. But with certain exceptions, anyone who earns more than $500 a year from gambling is supposed to pay the special gambling taxes.

Yet across the nation, only 1,297 gamblers have purchased their federal occupational stamp. If these figures are to be believed, there are only three professsonal gamblers in New York, only three in Florida. There are none at all in Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Hawaii and New Jersey. Even the gambling state of Nevada has only 120 registered gamblers.

Clearly, there are wholesale violations. IRS now has the responsibility for tax assessment. ATF still is supposed to take the criminal cases. Neither agency is doing its job. They blame one another, and both blame the Treasury Dept.

Meanwhile, the IRS has been hounding honest citizens for back taxes while the gamblers escaped enforcement and hundreds of millions of dollars slipped through the Treasury's fingers.

Footnote: It is possible that the IRS audited the taxes of some gamblers last year as part of its income tax audits. There were no audits, however, of gambling tax cases. The voluntary revenue from gambling taxes for the first nine months of 1975, incidentally, amounted to an insignificant tax rate of less than 1 per cent.

His nomination was voted upon at the association's annual business meeting, held Tuesday in conjunction with the 26th annual Midwestern Foodservice and Equipment Exposition Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at Kiel auditorium.

In 1967, Banken and Audry Fralick, while still employes of the Chevrolet agency in Dexter, purchased the Hickory Log Restaurant. They remained employes of the Chevrolet agency for a year while working part time at the restaurant, which at that time seated 65 persons and featured ribs and beer. They soon expanded the restaurant to seat 150, with 20 employes.

In 1970, they expanded again and added barbecued sirloin to their rib and beer specialty. In 1975, major remodeling and expanding was completed to allow restaurant and banquet seating facilities for 320 persons and a full-service lounge for 65 persons.

The restaurant sells 6,000 pounds of ribs a week, serves 3,000 meals a week and draws people from a four-state area.

Mississippi County Court proposes tax on landfill operations

CHARLESTON — The Mississippi County Court has called a special election for Nov. 2, at which the voters will be asked to approve a tax levy of up to 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation for operation of a solid waste management system.

The election will be held in conjunction with the general election, with voting at the same polling places throughout the county.

County Clerk Arthur Lee Goodin said the court is on record as planning to levy only the amount of tax needed to pay for a year's operation of the trash handling system. For the current year, he said, expenses are running about $4,000 per quarter or $16,000 per year.

If this rate of expenditure were to continue, he said a tax levy of only four or five cents would be needed to support the system.

Goodin explained that the county used revenue-sharing money to purchase a landfill site in Scott County northwest of Commerce on Route N. The landfill site has been carefully engineered and developed, and this year received an "exceptional" rating from the Missouri Department of Natural Resources.

The Scott County site was chosen because of the high water table in Mississippi County. No Mississippi County site could pass the new state and federal requirements, Goodin said.

A full-time operator lives at the landfill, Goodin said, and keeps it open from 8 to 8:30 p.m. on weekdays and from 8 to noon on Saturdays.

Earthmoving equipment has already been purchased for the landfill, and a compactor is being purchased this year, using a federal community development block grant.

Also to be provided this year under the federal grant are a number of trash collection sites to be scattered throughout Mississippi County. The County Court will have to arrange for the collection boxes at these sites to be emptied and the trash hauled to the landfill.

Under the proposed county plan, cities would still have to take care of their own trash collection, but could use the landfill free of charge. Rural residents would have to see that their trash was taken to the collection boxes throughout the county. There would be no home pickup for rural areas under the proposed plan.

A complete set of questions and answers on the proposed tax has been published in an advertisement in the Enterprise-Courier this week.

Mississippi County Court proposes tax on landfill operations

CHARLESTON — The Mississippi County Court has called a special election for Nov. 2, at which the voters will be asked to approve a tax levy of up to 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation for operation of a solid waste management system.

The election will be held in conjunction with the general election, with voting at the same polling places throughout the county.

County Clerk Arthur Lee Goodin said the court is on record as planning to levy only the amount of tax needed to pay for a year's operation of the trash handling system. For the current year, he said, expenses are running about $4,000 per quarter or $16,000 per year.

If this rate of expenditure were to continue, he said a tax levy of only four or five cents would be needed to support the system.

Goodin explained that the county used revenue-sharing money to purchase a landfill site in Scott County northwest of Commerce on Route N. The landfill site has been carefully engineered and developed, and this year received an "exceptional" rating from the Missouri Department of Natural Resources.

The Scott County site was chosen because of the high water table in Mississippi County. No Mississippi County site could pass the new state and federal requirements, Goodin said.

A full-time operator lives at the landfill, Goodin said, and keeps it open from 8 to 8:30 p.m. on weekdays and from 8 to noon on Saturdays.

Earthmoving equipment has already been purchased for the landfill, and a compactor is being purchased this year, using a federal community development block grant.

Also to be provided this year under the federal grant are a number of trash collection sites to be scattered throughout Mississippi County. The County Court will have to arrange for the collection boxes at these sites to be emptied and the trash hauled to the landfill.

Under the proposed county plan, cities would still have to take care of their own trash collection, but could use the landfill free of charge. Rural residents would have to see that their trash was taken to the collection boxes throughout the county. There would be no home pickup for rural areas under the proposed plan.

A complete set of questions and answers on the proposed tax has been published in an advertisement in the Enterprise-Courier this week.

The initiative issues on the November 2 ballot

By JAMES C. KIRKPATRICK
Secretary of State

JEFFERSON CITY — Since 1910, Missouri voters have been asked to consider the adoption of 29 constitutional amendments and 10 propositions to change laws placed on the ballot by initiative petition. Voters on Nov. 2 will be asked to vote on two more constitutional amendments and a proposition to change a law. Each of these proposals was placed on the ballot by petition and requires a "yes" vote from a simple majority of the voters to be adopted.

The purpose of this article is to explain each proposal fairly so the voter may decide for himself how to mark his ballot on election day.

Amendment No. 1

Constitutional Amendment No. 1 seeks to finance additional programs of the Missouri Department of Conservation. The state sales tax would be increased by one-eighth of one per cent if the amendment is approved, with the new revenue to be spent solely on conservation activities. The increase would take effect on July 1, 1977.

Supporters of the amendment advocate the "Design for Conservation," a 20-year plan to purchase an additional 121,000 acres of land to be preserved in its natural state. The funds made available to the Conservation Department would double its current budget with funds to buy land, as well as improve existing conservation activities.

The Design for Conservation has been several years in the making. Its goal is to preserve natural areas.

Critics of Amendment No. 1 dislike the method of financing the plan.

Opponents argue the amendment would really mean a full one-cent sales tax increase because a one-eighth percent increase presents bookkeeping and collection problems.

Opponents have also argued the sales tax increase has no expiration date after the planned program is completed. They say it is not financially sound to set aside funds for specific purposes at a time when other agencies of state government are hardpressed for adequate funding.

Supporters of Amendment No. 1 respond by citing a survey indicating public acceptance of the concept of earmarking state revenue for specific programs.

Supporters claim Missouri cannot afford to wait any longer to buy desirable land. They contend Missouri is nature land poor, and increasing real estate costs and diminishing wildlife areas make adoption of the amendment urgent.

Amendment No. 2

Sales tax rates would also be affected by Constitutional Amendment No. 2. Beginning Jan. 1, 1978, the amendment would prohibit state and local sales and use taxes on food consumed "off premises" and prescription drugs.

The Missouri Municipal League has estimated 165 cities levying a sales tax would lose a total of $40 million income in 1978 if sales taxes on food and prescription drugs are prohibited.

A study cited by the Missouri Department of Revenue maintains state government would lose $140 million annually if the amendment passes.

Supporters of Constitutional Amendment No. 2 dispute these figures. They say the sales tax on the essentials of food and prescribed medicines places an unfair burden on the poor and those with fixed incomes.

While there is little agreement on how much money is at stake, supporters of Amendment No. 2 concede the loss of revenue must be made up in some other way if present government services are to continue.

Supporters have suggested three ways of making up the money. For cities, supporters say the legislature should increase the maximum local-option sales tax levy by one-half of one per cent, except, of course, on food and prescription drugs.

They also suggest exempting only the first $1,000 of personal income from state income taxes.

Finally, supporters propose eliminating the deduction corporations receive on state income taxes for the taxes they pay to the federal government.

The substance of the debate over Constitutional Amendment No. 2 doesn't concern a tax cut. The real issue is in what way will Missouri increase taxes needed to sustain good services.

Proposition No. 1

Proposition No. 1 would prohibit electric companies from including charges for construction, including new power plants, in a customer's bill before the new facility is fully operational. If the proposal is adopted by the voters, electric companies will have 90 days after the law takes effect to adjust bills accordingly.

Proposition No. 1 came about as the result of a Missouri Public Service Commission ruling last December permitting electric companies to pass on to consumers the cost of "construction work in progress."

Supporters contend rate payers should not have to pay for the building of new power plants before they can benefit from the use of the new construction. They say the recent ruling of the Public Service Commission has shifted the risk involved in new construction from stockholders to individual rate payers.

Some supporters also hope passage of Proposition No. 1 will delay or halt construction of a nuclear power plant near Fulton in Callaway County.

Opponents of Proposition No. 1 say the practice of charging consumers for construction work in progress is the least costly and most efficient way of meeting future electric needs. They maintain passage of Proposition No. 1 would make it more difficult to attract the investor money needed to finance new construction. Without building the new power plants needed, spokesmen say, Missouri may lose thousands of jobs and be unable to meet energy demands.

At this year's primary, nearly 97 per cent of the voters who marked ballots for candidates also voted for one or more of the seven constitutional amendments offered -- a new record which indicates voters are taking a greater interest in the issues.

That represents an optimistic note in the effort to stimulate voter awareness and concern.

Our boys in the service

Marine Chief Warrant Officer Ralph Sturgeon, son of Mrs. Mildred G. Greer, 416 Kendall St., participated in exercise "Bonded Item" in the North Sea.

He is serving as a member of Regimental Landing Team 8, which is a component of the 4th Marine Amphibious Brigade.

He was one of 11,000 Marines, soldiers and Navy Corpsmen from the U.S., Denmark and the Federal Republic of Germany who recently took part in the coordinted amphibious, land and air exercise.

The primary objective of the exercise was to evaluate and enhance the Allied capabilities for amphibious support for northern Western Europe.

Participating units evaluated increased standardization of doctrines, equipment and armaments among North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces, plus command and control procedures for coordinated action by NATO sea, land and air forces.

"Bonded Item" was conducted jointly by the commanders of the Atlantic Striking Fleet and Allied Baltic Approaches Forces. It is on of a series of operations, conducted each fall from Norway to Turkey, designed to provide unified and coordinated training of national and NATO forces within the Allied Europe Command.

A former student at Sikeston High School, he joined the Marine Corps in August 1961.

Except during the Civil War, passports were not needed to enter or leave the United States until 1918.

SPLIT YOUR BALLOT!

I HAVE BEEN ASKED BY NUMEROUS VOTERS, HOW TO SPLIT A BALLOT?
THERE ARE TWO WAYS TO SPLIT A BALLOT.

1. MARK (X) IN FRONT OF THE NAME OF THE CANDIDATES, YOU WISH TO VOTE FOR, ON EACH SIDE OF THE BALLOT.

2. MARK (X) IN THE CIRCLE IMMEDIATELY BELOW THE PARTY NAME AND THEN MARK (X) IN FRONT OF THE NAME OF THE CANDIDATE, YOU WISH TO VOTE FOR ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE TICKET.

This second way has been argued against by some of the counting judges in the past. But is the instruction in Missouri Revised Statues No. 111.451.

"Bonded Item" was conducted jointly by the commanders of the Atlantic Striking Fleet and Allied Baltic Approaches Forces. It is on of a series of operations, conducted each fall from Norway to Turkey, designed to provide unified and coordinated training of national and NATO forces within the Allied Europe Command.

SPLIT YOUR BALLOT!

I HAVE BEEN ASKED BY NUMEROUS VOTERS, HOW TO SPLIT A BALLOT? THERE ARE TWO WAYS TO SPLIT A BALLOT.

1. MARK (X) IN FRONT OF THE NAME OF THE CANDIDATES, YOU WISH TO VOTE FOR, ON EACH SIDE OF THE BALLOT.

2. MARK (X) IN THE CIRCLE IMMEDIATELY BELOW THE PARTY NAME AND THEN MARK (X) IN FRONT OF THE NAME OF THE CANDIDATE, YOU WISH TO VOTE FOR ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE TICKET.

This second way has been argued against by some of the counting judges in the past. But is the instruction in Missouri Revised Statues No. 111.451.

I WOULD APPRECIATE YOUR (X) IN FRONT OF RALPH MOUSER, FOR SHERIFF.

Driessen's wife sat out his part in World Series

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sitting in her car parked in a deserted airport parking lot, Bonnie Driessen passed the early morning hours today waiting for her hero husband Dan to return from the World Series.

Her husband wouldn't let her go to New York, where he had been the hero of Game 3 Tuesday and where the Reds captured their second straight world championship Thursday night, sweeping the New York Yankees in four straight games.

It wasn't that Bonnie didn't want to go, but her husband, taking into consideration that their first child was due in December, thought otherwise and ruled she was off the traveling squad.

"Karolyn Rose and Petuka Perez really got him into a corner and told him that I was going. He said 'yes' to them, but later said 'no way' to me," Bonnie recalled.

So, Bonnie spent the week watching television with Yvonne Armbrister, who is also pregnant.

"We were he only two wives who didn't make the trip," Bonnie said.

She knew it was going to be exciting in New York. Her husband would be playing on a regular basis because he was the Reds designated hitter.

"I had to keep saying to myself, 'calm down', calm down'," she recalled about her ordeals in front of the television set with Mrs. Armbrister.

And after every ball game, when Driessen phoned she tried excitedly to talk about the game, but found instead that all her husband wanted to know was how she was feeling and how was the baby.

"Maybe it was better I didn't go," she said. "He would have been worried sick about someone touching me and he wouldn't have gotten a hit."

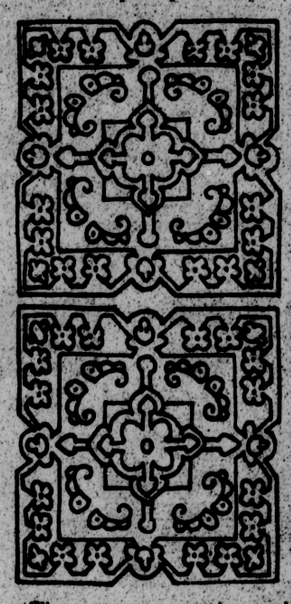
CARPETS I

What a feast my eyes had last month at the Victoria and Albert Museum in London where I spent several hours admiring — and studying — the Oriental carpets in the museum's rich collection.

Their elegant symmetrical designs lend themselves beautifully to needlepoint projects. If you hesitate to undertake a carpet, the designs can be easily adapted to pillows.

I've always been fascinated by the symbolism of the Eastern motifs. Arabian carpets often combine geometric forms — stars and rosettes — with motifs from nature and blend the two into a subtle and harmonious whole. Their flower forms, borrowed from Persian gardens, include palmettes, chrysanthemums and lotus blossoms. The palm tree represents fulfillment of secret wishes and the graceful form of the weeping willow symbolizes sorrow.

Threaded through descriptions of rugs with Turkoman, Iranian and Bokhara themes is the word, "Gul" which means a repeat pattern.



They appear again and again, often done by nomads, but since they're made by hand they bear the individual touch of each maker. In red tones with touches of brown, the Turkoman carpets (also called Afghan and Baluchi), come from nothern Iran near the Caspian Sea.

Centuries ago Marco Polo was enthralled by their splendor and beauty and today the geometric simplicity of these age-old designs fits well into the spacious, linear design of contemporary homes. If you look at them closely you'll see that the geometrics are often interspersed with creatures, insects and tree forms.

To me one of the most exciting things about these carpets is that they can start with a very small two-by-four feet and grow to enormous lengths by the simple device of adding Guls (repeats).

An illustrated leaflet on needlepoint applique is available FREE. For yours, write to Elsa Williams, Box 3788, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Often sold in what was called "narrow column borders," the pieces were later bound together to make sumptuous large carpets for floors and walls.

More about carpets next week.

Dear Elsa,

I've done a piece of crewel embroidery in a monochrome color scheme (all blues). Is it possible to do two-color schemes? I've seen this often in Bargello but not in crewel embroidery on linen.

L.M.V.

Dear L.M.V.,

It certainly is — and you can achieve some rather unusual effects. As a matter of fact there's a centuries-old tradition for precisely this use of color.

In the Jacobean period some patterns were done in a monochromatic base with an accent color. For example, the famous Tree of Life design might be done with leaves and flowers in a single color (in many shades) with tree trunk and branches in deep brown or black. Other beautiful pieces on white linen have been worked in many tones of a single color with black accents. Try it for an unusual effect.

Cline addresses Retired Teachers

State Rep. C. F. Cline was the guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the SeMo Retired Teachers Association Oct. 14. The group met at the El Capri Restaurant.

Rep. Cline told the group that the next legislative session in Missouri will see many changes due to the retirement of several important leaders and the defeat of others in this election year.

Rep. Cline, a member of the education committee, told members of the teachers group that the committee would also be very different.

Cline said that educations funds could be distributed more evenly among the various districts and salaries are also not as equitable as possible.

He also discussed the criminal code in Missouri and population trends in counties of the Bootheel area.

He called on the retired teachers to do their part for better government by being well-informed on the issues and helping to educate others to the problems of the state and its people.

Presiding over the meeting was Mrs. Margaret Cain, vice president.

On Oct. 12, the SeMo unit of Retired Teachers were the guests of Sikeston School Board and Schools Supt. Sam Harbin at a luncheon at the Sikeston High School. Thirty members of the teachers group attended.

Blazers wrap up look for men this season

By Charles Hix

Although the term blazer can be traced to the 1860s when a British captain of the HMS Blazer looked disdainfully on his motley crew and immediately summoned a tailor to sew up some metal-buttoned blue serge jackets, these days no one really knows how to define what a blazer is . . . other than big business.

With the continuing emphasis on dressing up (one shirt maker now reports its best-selling dress shirt is a classic white Oxford), sales of blazers and sportcoats are scaling heights higher than they've mounted within the last decade. And since designers are offering new touches and details to entice men, traditional notions of what makes a jacket one type versus another are disappearing. Not only true of blazers, this phenomenon is happening with hunting jackets and sports jackets as well.

"Originally 'blazer' stood for a solid-colored coat (usually in a dark shade, often navy) with metal buttons," explains one designer. "Today metal, pearl and even horn buttons are appropriate. The coat may be solid, striped or checked. The single most distinguishable feature is that metal buttons should always be used on stripes or checks, while solids can have metal, pearl or horn. Right now, double-breasted blazers are especially hot. Peaked lapels, too."

Traditionally, blazers have been cut with open patch pockets. Today hey are seen with open patch, flap patch or even straight flap and the breast pocket can either be an open patch, flap patch or welt.

J. P. Stevens, the giant textiles company, notes that a variety of its fall fabrics, from navy to taupe to mushroom to camel, plus plaids of all persuasions, are being used in blazer looks this fall.

Among the designers who are putting their personal signature on blazers (or blazer suits) this fall are Yves Saint Laurent, Cardin, Ralph Lauren, Nino Cerruti, Carlo Palazzi, Adolfo, Oscar de la Renta, Sal Cesarani, Bill Blass and countless others. Dimitri is making a black leather blazer while Bill Kaiserman for Rafael goes the double-breasted, navy suede blazer route.

So important to over-all sales have blazers become that Austin Reed initiated a new blazer program this fall. As a result, sales reportedly doubled those in '75. The Jack Nicklaus blazer line has increased "substantially," notes an official. (Apparently "substantially" doesn't mean double.) Hickey-Freeman, while reporting a 10 per cent sales increase, qualifies this figure by noting their retailers had better sales last year on blazers than sportcoats. These dealers are increasing blazer orders now to bring that category back into balance with sportcoat inventory.

Missionary league has rally

POCAHONTAS — Zion Lutheran Church hosted the 61st Semi-Annual Rally of the Lutheran Women's Missionary League on Oct. 13. It was also the 30th anniversary of the league's existence.

Theme of the rally was "Sowing The Seed in Korea." The host pastor, the Rev. Delmar C. Warren, conducted the opening devotion. Mrs. Margie Reisenbichler gave the welcome and Mrs. Viola Weiss gave the response. Organist was Mrs. Berniece Lorenz. Presiding officer was Mrs. Lavern Wachter. Twenty-five of the 30 member societies answered roll call, with a total of 291 members, pastors, and guests present.

During the morning session, committee reports were heard. Two of these were in the form of skits. One was entitled "Station WJER" under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Palisch, Christian growth chairman and the other entitled "Saints Arise; Grow and Bloom", under the direction of mission chairman, Mrs. Sophie Reisenbichler. Others reporting were the presiding officer, the secretary, the treasurer, the Zone Hi-Lites editor, public relations director and a pre-convention report by Mrs. Amanda Short regarding the progress that is being made towards this zone hosting the LWML District Convention in Cape Girardeau in May, 1978.

The afternoon sessions began under the leadership of Mrs. Curt Vogel of Perryville. She was the chairman at the first meeting of the LWML in what was then known as the Altenberg-Cape Girardeau Zone when it had its beginning on Oct. 6, 1946 at Perryville, Mo. Three other ladies that were present on that charter day were also in attendance today. They were Mrs. Norma Prevallet, Mrs. Mary Hemmann, and Mrs. Myrtle Hilpert.

Afternoon devotions were led by Mrs. Eleanor Huck. Guest speaker, the Rev. Larry W. Myers, was introduced by Rev. Robert Daniel. He addressed the group on "Establishing Local Parishes in Korea" illustrated by slides of the work being done in the various parts of Korea. Rev. Myers left for Korea in 1972 and after spending 4 years there is now home and is taking further classes towards his Ph.D. program.

He said that in 1958 Lutheranism came to the scene in Korea. One hundred years of Christian history had preceded this. Television and Christian correspondence courses were used immediately as a means of getting the Lutheran message out. In a 15th year period 400,000 persons have enrolled in the correspondence courses and as many as 25 new persons enroll every day. In 1968, a Lutheran Theological Academy was established and in 1970 they were deep in local parish work. In 1973, one million Koreans assembled to hear Billy Graham and at the Expo '74, 1.5 million citizens attended. All churches are two stories high with educational rooms on the first level and worship rooms on the second level and 33 per cent of them are self supporting. Koreans attend church three times weekly.

Peaches recipes for year-round fun

American tastes are very specific. We know what we like from soup to nuts to fruits. Peaches — fuzzy, firm and orangey-pink — continue to rank first in popularity among canned fruits for the U.S. appetite. Not satisfied with a short summer season when fresh peaches can be purchased, we look to year-round enjoyment and buy canned clings and freestones.

Certainly this is not the beginning of the peach story. For many years, historians believed peaches to be native to Persia — what we call Iran today. In fact, peaches have been called "Persian Apples," and the English term "Peach" comes from the Latin word meaning "Persian."

Recent botanical studies, however, show that China was the original home of the peach. Chinese literature mentions the fruit as early as 2000 B.C., and study of Hebrew and Sanskrit shows there was no word for the peach in Persia until 1500 B.C., suggesting that up until that time it was unknown to the people of that part of the world.

From its home in China, the fruit — known for its striking beauty and royal color — was brought west along caravan routes and was introduced to Mediterranean palates during the time of Alexander the Great. After centuries of cultivation throughout the fertile land of Europe, peaches were brought to our shores by Spanish explorers in the 16th century. Indians acquired taste for them and they carried the fruit inland and across the continent.

Commercial cultivation began in the 19th century. Although early crops were consumed as peach brandy during cold winters, Americans have shown peaches to be their favorite fruit and demand a steady supply.

There remains some confusion about the symbolism of the peach. Some Chinese writers called it the "Tree of Life." Other ancient Chinese writers associate peach blossoms with feminine promiscuity, but in modern day America, it is a compliment to call some one a "peach of a girl."

The Persian Apple which actually originated in China is, nonetheless, a peach of a fruit.

PEACHY OVEN-FRIED CHICKEN

1 2½ to 3 lb. broiler- fryer chicken, cut into pieces
2-thirds cup flour
1½ tsp. ground ginger
1 tsp. salt
2 Tbsp. margarine or butter
2 Tbsp. salad oil
1 can (29 oz.) yellow cling peach halves, drained

Rinse chicken; pat dry. Combine flour, ginger and salt. Dredge chicken in flour mixture. Melt margarine with oil in a shallow baking pan. Arrange chicken, skin side down in pan. Do not stack pieces. Bake at 350 F., 45 minutes. Turn; place one peach half on each piece. Return to oven and continue baking 15 minutes.

4 to 6 servings.

PEACHY CREAM

1 can (29 oz.) yellow cling sliced peaches, drained and syrup reserved
½ cup sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2-thirds cup reserved syrup
1 cup whipping cream or half and half
1½ cups dairy sour cream
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. vanilla extract

In small pan, blend together sugar and unflavored gelatin. Add reserved syrup; mix well. Let stand 5 minutes; bring to a full boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and pour in whipping cream.

In a bowl mix sour cream with lemon juice and vanilla extract. Gradaully beat in hot sugar mixture. To make individual desserts, pour cream equally into 8 small serving dishes or 8 metal molds of about ½-cup size. Or pour mixture into a pretty serving bowl (4-5 -cup size) or a 4-cup metal mold.

Cover and chill until set, about 4 hours or overnight. Serve in individual dishes or unmold by dipping mold(s) in hot water and inverting on serving plate. Serve with peaches.

8 servings.

Cut in T.V. viewing time draws child out of shell

NEW MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — Susie was a 4-year-old loner.

But after her television viewing was cut to one hour a week for a month, she began asking kindergarten classmates over to play — something she had never done before.

Susie and the children of 15 other families here participated in the four-week television experiment with Redbook magazine. The magazine reported in its November issue that the families became closer and the children improved in school. The children's real names were not used.

But of all the children in the experiment — from kindergarten age through third grade — Susie was the most changed, the magazine said.

The magazine did not say how much television each child watched before the experiment. It noted that the average child between the ages of 2 and 5 watches 23.5 hours a week, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., which rates television audiences.

Most parents who participated in the test said their youngsters complained for the first week or so. Susie at first often had fits of temper about not being allowed to watch "Batman." But by the second week she was becoming more involved with her schoolmates.

After the experiment, another youngster, Mark, stopped playing at "blowing up things," and his parents said he stopped getting into fist fights.

Mary, who had been getting Ds and Fs on her third-grade spelling tests, brought home a B-plus after the experiment.

The article said that even after the experiment was over it found most parents much more conscious of what children watched and more careful not to "slip back into the old patterns, the automatic click of the 'on' button, the mindless watching."

However, the magazine reported that Susie resumed her old viewing habits after the test, and her parents and teachers noticed immediately that she began to withdraw again.

DEAR POLLY — My husband always used to have trouble with his bathrobe belt. It seemed to twist or he would tear off the loops. I finally found the solution was to have him put on the robe while I pinned the belt in place. Then I machine stitched it to the robe. Ann Landers

Loveless marriage hard to survive

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are retired, in our mid-60s. For various reasons we have not "lived together" in the real sense for 20 years. We each have a heavy grievances against the other, but two attempts at divorce fell through because of health problems and social pressure. So we continue to share the same house.

My question; How many marriages end up this way? I'll bet the percentage is high, especially in the older age bracket. How do these people cope with the situation, which at times becomes very depressing? – Seeking Answers

Dear Seeking: I can't give you any figures on the number of couples whose marriages are hanging together with safety pins and Elmer's glue, but I CAN tell you there are more poor marriages around than good ones -- by a long shot. Especially after ten years.

How do they cope? You, dear Lady, are IN such a marriage. How do YOU do it? My guess is -- with great difficulty.

Dear Ann Landers: Since your column is an educational source for agreat many people, I'd like to pass on some useful information out of my own experience.

Dear Ann Landers: Since your column is an educational source for a great many people, I'd like to pass on some useful information out of my own experience.

Several days ago my car was stolen. The details of where and how are not important, but the aftermath caused me considerable anxiety. I hope I can spare others what I went through.

Unthinkingly, I left my house keys in the glove compartment. On the key ring was my identification card, complete with address. Also in the glove compartment was a map, showing friends how to get to our home. (We live in the suburbs.)

The car was recovered after three days but the house keys and map were missing. The cost and nuisance of changing the locks was minimal compared with the mental anguish of knowing that some car thief knew where we lived and had the keys to our home for three days. Warn your readers, Ann. -- Barricaded in Wlmette

Dear Will: You warned them -- and I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: Something is bothering me. It seems whenever I pick up your column some teenage girl is having a second child out of wedlock. My 20-year-old daughter can't even get a date.

Rosalie isn't beautiful but she certainly is presentable. She has a slight weight problem but you wouldn't call her fat. She is healthy-looking, and a lot more attractive than the models with their hip bones sticking out and their middles caved in like they have TB or something.

It just breaks my heart to see this lovely, intelligent girl sitting home night after night or going to the movies with the girls at the shop where she works. How can I help her make a social life? -- Mother With A Heartache

Dear Mother: I know of no way a mothercan create a social life for her 20-year-old daughter. Rosalie will have to do it herself -- if she is interested.

I rcommend weekend vacations away from home where single people go, political clubs, night-school classes -- in other words, outside exposure. She'll never catch a muskie if she keeps fishing in a herring barrel.

Reds complete sweep of Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven games ago, Sparky Anderson knew it would take only seven games for his Cincinnati Reds to become baseball champions of the world.

The first of those seven came in Philadelphia. The Reds, winners of the National League's West Division, were playing the Phillies, the best of the East.

"I said to myself then that if we beat (pitcher) Steve Carlton in the first game, we'd win seven straight," Anderson recalled.

The Reds did beat Carlton. Then they beat Philadelphia again ... and again. That was the National League pennant.

Then came the New York Yankees, who had just won the American League flag in an exhausting five-game series with Kansas City.

The Reds beat the Yanks. Then they beat them again ... and again ... and again. Seven games later, the Reds were No. 1 for the second straight year.

Thursday night's clincher was a 7-2 romp built on Johnny Bench's two home runs and the pitching of Gary Nolan and reliever Will McEnaney. It was the first World Series sweep since Baltimore's over Los Angeles in 1966. And it was the first time a National League club had taken two straight World Series since the New York Giants did it in 1921-22.

It was, to put it mildly, awesome.

"They beat us tonight," muttered catcher Thurman Munson, the only bright spot in the otherwise pale New York lineup. "They beat us this time, they beat us four straight, they beat the hell out of us all the way through. What else is there to say?"

Whatever else there was to say was said succinctly by Anderson.

"This ball club has more class than any other club of the 24 all around the country," Anderson said. "Last year, when we beat Boston in seven games, they were like kids. Now they're men."

Indeed. In the Cincinnati locker room, the mood was remarkably subdued, as though these Reds were used to such championships — which, in fact, they are. There was little of the yahooing, champagne-bathing, towel-throwing of last year, when it took the Reds sevan dramatic games to subdue the Boston Red Sox.

"Last year was certainly exciting, more so than this one," said Bench, the runaway Most Valuable Player in the Series for his eight hits in 16 at-bats and six runs batted in. Five of those RBI came in the clincher on a two-run homer in the fourth and a three-run shot in the ninth.

"And last year might have been more gratifying for me, personally," added Bench, whose .533 Series average more than offset his dismal, injury-decimated season when he batted .234 with 16 homers and 74 RBI.

It may well have been Munson's finest game ever, too. He had four hits, scored one run and drove in the other. His six straight hits over two games tied a Series record set in 1924 by Washington's Goose Goslin.

Munson batted .529 in the Series, far above any other Yankees starter. New York as a whole hit a paltry .222 to the Reds' .313.

In the first inning, Munson singled and scored on Chris Chambliss' double. In the fifth, Mickey Rivers singled, stole second and scored on Munson's single.

But each time the Yanks got a run, the Reds got more.

In the fourth inning, Joe Morgan walked and stole second with such ease that Munson didn't even bother throwing. With two out, George Foster singled him home. Then Bench unloaded on an Ed Figueroa fastball and sent it soaring down the left-field line. It hit the foul screen in front of the upper deck and the Reds led 3-1.

"Yeah, I knew it was out," Bench said. "But at first I didn't know if it was going to be fair. The way I hit it, though, as soon as it started straightening out, I figured it was good. I stood watching it at the plate — not because I didn't want to have to walk back, but just to make sure."

In the ninth, with the Yanks down by just one run, the Reds demolished any hopes they had of making a comeback.

Tony Perez walked, then Dan Driessen did, too. In came Dick Tidrow, replacing Figueroa. One out later, Bench hit his second homer, a line drive a couple of rows back in the lower left-field seats.

"Tidrow had gotten me out in the third game with a slider, gotten me to hit into a double play with it, so I was thinking slider," Bench said. "That's what he threw and I really got into it."

A few minutes earlier, Yankees Manager Billy Martin had gotton out of it. The game, that is. He was thumbed by NL umpire Bruce Froemming at first base.

"Thurmon Munson had turned around a few times on balls and strikes," Froemming said, starting his explanation. "Then Bill Deegan (the home plate umpire) threw a ball of play. I watched it roll into the Yankee dugout. I saw Martin pick it up and throw it back on the field in Deegan's direction.

"e had a riot situation here in New York and Martin knew it."

And Martin was immediately gone. "I would throw a manager out of any field in the country for doing what he did," Froemming said. "It's an automatic ejection for throwing equipment on the field."

Not much later, the souvenir-hunters were on the field by the hundreds, even before Roy White's fly ball settled in Foster's glove in left field.

And half an hour after that, Yankee Stadium stood like an enormous tomb in the ravaged South Bronx. Silent, littered, ravaged itself with huge chunks of sod torn away. And most of all, empty.

The Yankees, once the most feared team in baseball, had rolled over and played dead.

The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. houses three magnificent theaters: the Opera House, the Eisenhower Theater and the Concert Hall, with a total seating capacity of 11,050.

Bulldogs host Central tonight

It will be a homecoming that isn't Homecoming.

The Cape Central Tigers were perennially the Homecoming opponents for the Sikeston Bulldogs and each year they provided Sikeston fans with a sad one. Percentage- wise, the Tigers are the most successful opponent that Sikeston has played year after year and, possibly because of this, the homecoming game in the 1976 football season was moved earlier in the year and designated for the Dexter game.

However, the Sikeston Bulldogs haven't graced the friendly confines of Public Schools Stadium for three weeks now and you can bet that the scarlet team will be happy to once again play before the home folks.

"Cape can beat us," coach Terry Smith has been quoted as saying, pointing at the same time to their size and youth as undeterminable factors. A defensive line that averages some 185 pounds per man will give up weight and strength to the Sikeston line, but it is capable of stopping the Sikeston running game.

The key man in a sporadic Central offense is tailback Jerome Smith, who has rushed for 505 yards in the six Central games. Smith, a 165-pound senior, is quick and shifty and raced to an 89-yard night against the salty Poplar Bluff Mules defense a week ago.

"Mistakes," Tiger coach Gary Emmenderfer moaned after the Mule game. "They kill us every week."

Cape fumbled six times against Poplar Bluff, yet managed to hold the Mules to a 21–0 game. The youthful Tigers figure to improve by sheer playing time and an upset over the Bulldogs would make a lackluster 1976 season worthwhile.

Cape starts five sophomores on offense and defense and probably has the youngest team in the conference. Senior Rick Sippel runs the pro-set offense from quarterback, but has had little success passing this year. He has hit only eight passes in six games for 113 yards, a 34.8 percent completion mark.

Sippel, a 180-pounder, is a quick and speedy runner. He has broken runs of over 50 yards three times this year.

With crisp temperatures predicted, it figures to be a good night to welcome the Bulldogs back home and show them how much their perfect 7-0 record is appreciated. A heavy coat and some hot chocolate ought to take care of any discomfort.

Imagine the discomfort the Central defense will be experiencing, trying to stop the Sikeston offense and defense on this homecoming---of sorts.

Chief, T-Bone have their day

By DALE FORBIS

Doing the prediction story has fallen to me this week as our high school season rambles into its eighth week. I guess that's so I can brag on my two compadres for enjoying perfect performances last Friday. I only missed one (Kennett vs. Charleston), and BOTH T-Bone and the Chief hit all eight. I must pat my own back long enough to note that my 81.0 percent mark is still good enough for the top spot, but T-Bone has joined me there.

We'd like to point out that these predictions are done in fun and no harm is meant to anyone by our picks, or comments. A Charleston paper branded the good ole Forb a "fool" for picking against the Bluejays. Of course, one must take into consideration that the same writer that labeled the luvable Forb a fool, also ripped the Bulldogs for "struggling" (No starters played in the fourth quarter after the 11:24 mark.) past Kennett 21-0 and, a few weeks ago, took another potshot at us for daring to praise the SHS defense when they allowed Charleston only 14 total yards. Truly the Sikeston Bulldogs must be the most unloved undefeated team in Southeast Missouri. Despite the fact that they haven't even been threatened on the scoreboard since the Perryville game, area press would have you believe that the poor, bedraggled Dogs are teetering on the brink of disaster, game after game.

This week there are eight games and our panel disagrees only once:

JACKSON AT CHARLESTON — The same "writer" that has been chiseling on the Fob and the Bulldogs said that "Charleston won't lose another game this year." We say, "That must be a terrible shock to Jackson and Poplar Bluff."

CHIEF: Poplar Bluff by 27.
FORB: Poplar Bluff by 24.
T-BONE: Poplar Bluff by 21.

CARUTHERSVILLE AT PORTAGEVILLE — T-Bone goes for the upset, picking the Bulldogs to belt the reeling Tigers. Whoever prevails, it oughta be tight.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 10.
FORB: Caruthersville by 7.
T-BONE: Portageville by 6.

CHAFFEE AT MALDEN — The Devils may have blown their playoff chances, but they still have their eyes on the conference title. Two touchdown passes by Horrell and a Chaffee win.

CHIEF: Chaffee by 28.
FORB: Chaffee by 14.
T-BONE: Chaffee by 14.

EAST PRAIRIE AT GOSNELL, ARKANSAS — I wonder what the Arkansawyers will think about Southeast Missouri's yardage-maker? Gosnell only took struggling South Pemiscot by two touchdowns early in the season, so ...

CHIEF: East Prairie by 22.
FORB: East Prairie by 16.
T-BONE: East Prairie by 14.

HAYTI AT ILLMO-SCOTT CITY — The Rams are as good a shot for the title as anybody now and Hayti won't slow them down.

CHIEF: I-SC by 14.
FORB: I-SC by 14.
T-BONE: I-SC by 20.

SOUTH PEMISCOT AT DONIPHAN — "Whoever wins this game will spoil their perfect season," says T-Bone. One thing about it, we've heard that South Pemiscot hasn't been penalized once this year for having too many men on the field.

CHIEF: Doniphan by 10.
FORB: Doniphan by 7.
T-BONE: Doniphan by 14.

CAPE CENTRAL AT SIKESTON— Southeast Missouri's "worst" unbeaten team will again struggle and stumble and luck into another win over the inspired Tigers. And, after suffering through yet another series of criticisms about their performance, the Bulldogs will know that no cracks about their schedule or the game scores will change the fact that they lead the Northern division and are unbeaten.

CHIEF: Sikeston by 17.
FORB: Sikeston by 20.
T-BONE: Sikeston by 21.

Once again we repeat that we haven't tried to offend anyone this year and the prime objective for each of us every week has been to get every game correct ... mainly because the winner gets a steak bought for him by the other two. At least, if I win.

Reds complete sweep of Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven games ago, Sparky Anderson knew it would take only seven games for his Cincinnati Reds to become baseball champions of the world.

The first of those seven came in Philadelphia. The Reds, winners of the National League's West Division, were playing the Phillies, the best of the East.

"I said to myself then that if we beat (pitcher) Steve Carlton in the first game, we'd win seven straight," Anderson recalled.

The Reds did beat Carlton. Then they beat Philadelphia again ... and again. That was the National League pennant.

Then came the New York Yankees, who had just won the American League flag in an exhausting five-game series with Kansas City.

The Reds beat the Yanks. Then they beat them again ... and again ... and again. Seven games later, the Reds were No. 1 for the second straight year.

Thursday night's clincher was a 7-2 romp built on Johnny Bench's two home runs and the pitching of Gary Nolan and reliever Will McEnaney. It was the first World Series sweep since Baltimore's over Los Angeles in 1966. And it was the first time a National League club had taken two straight World Series since the New York Giants did it in 1921-22.

It was, to put it mildly, awesome.

"They beat us tonight," muttered catcher Thurman Munson, the only bright spot in the otherwise pale New York lineup. "They beat us this time, they beat us four straight, they beat the hell out of us all the way through. What else is there to say?"

Whatever else there was to say was said succinctly by Anderson.

"This ball club has more class than any other club of the 24 all around the country," Anderson said. "Last year, when we beat Boston in seven games, they were like kids. Now they're men."

Indeed. In the Cincinnati locker room, the mood was remarkably subdued, as though these Reds were used to such championships — which, in fact, they are. There was little of the yahooing, champagne-bathing, towel-throwing of last year, when it took the Reds sevan dramatic games to subdue the Boston Red Sox.

"Last year was certainly exciting, more so than this one," said Bench, the runaway Most Valuable Player in the Series for his eight hits in 15 at-bats and six runs batted in. Five of those RBI came in the clincher on a two-run homer in the fourth and a three-run shot in the ninth.

"And last year might have been more gratifying for me, personally," added Bench, whose .533 Series average more than offset his dismal, injury-decimated season when he batted .234 with 16 homers and 74 RBI.

It may well have been Munson's finest game ever, too. He had four hits, scored one run and drove in the other. His six straight hits over two games tied a Series record set in 1924 by Washington's Goose Goslin.

Munson batted .529 in the Series, far above any other Yankees starter. New York as a whole hit a paltry .222 to the Reds' .313.

In the first inning, Munson singled and scored on Chris Chambliss' double. In the fifth, Mickey Rivers singled, stole second and scored on Munson's single.

But each time the Yanks got a run, the Reds got more.

In the fourth inning, Joe Morgan walked and stole second with such ease that Munson didn't even bother throwing. With two out, George Foster singled him home. Then Bench unloaded on an Ed Figueroa fastball and sent it soaring down the left-field line. It hit the foul screen in front of the upper deck and the Reds led 3-1.

"Yeah, I knew it was out," Bench said. "But at first I didn't know if it was going to be fair. The way I hit it, though, as soon as it started straightening out, I figured it was good. I stood watching it at the plate — not because I didn't want to have to walk back, but just to make sure."

In the ninth, with the Yanks down by just one run, the Reds demolished any hopes they had of making a comeback.

Tony Perez walked, then Dan Driessen did, too. In came Dick Tidrow, replacing Figueroa. One out later, Bench hit his second homer, a line drive a couple of rows back in the lower left-field seats.

"Tidrow had gotten me out in the third game with a slider, gotten me to hit into a double play with it, so I was thinking slider," Bench said. "That's what he threw and I really got into it."

A few minutes earlier, Yankees Manager Billy Martin had gotton out of it. The game, that is. He was thumbed by NL umpire Bruce Froemming at first base.

"Thurmon Munson had turned around a few times on balls and strikes," Froemming said, starting his explanation. "Then Bill Deegan (the home plate umpire) threw a ball of play. I watched it roll into the Yankee dugout. I saw Martin pick it up and throw it back on the field in Deegan's direction.

"e had a riot situation here in New York and Martin knew it."

And Martin was immediately gone. "I would throw a manager out of any field in the country for doing what he did," Froemming said. "It's an automatic ejection for throwing equipment on the field."

Not much later, the souvenir-hunters were on the field by the hundreds, even before Roy White's fly ball settled in Foster's glove in left field.

And half an hour after that, Yankee Stadium stood like an enormous tomb in the ravaged South Bronx. Silent, littered, ravaged itself with huge chunks of sod torn away. And most of all, empty.

The Yankees, once the most feared team in baseball, had rolled over and played dead.

Havlicek rallies Celtics to win

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Some things never change.

On a day when the New York Nets were shipping the heart and soul of their franchise down the turnpike to Philadelphia and when 13-time All-Star Jerry West was finding out what it was like to coach, it was up to the classy captain of the Boston Celtics to lend some sense of order to it all.

So John Havlicek scored 32 points, including six in the last three minutes of regulation play and eight in overtime, and sank his final eight shots as the Celtics rallied to beat the Indiana Pacers 129-122 in one of four National Basketball Association openers Thursday night.

"That's him," marveled Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard. "He's been doing that all his life. That's what makes him one of the greatest."

In other NBA openers, the New York Knicks trimmed the Los Angeles Lakers 102-97, the Houston Rockets beat the Atlanta Hawks 120-104 and the Buffalo Braves defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 133-112.

As for NBA debuts, it was mostly negative. Indiana, one of four teams absorbed from the American Basketball Association, was a loser. Among new coaches, West, of the Lakers, and Hubie Brown of the Hawks were losers, while Tates Locke of the Braves and Tom Nissalke of the Rockets were winners.

The Celtics, defending NBA champions, trailed by 18 points in the second period, when Boston center Dave Cowens picked up his fifth personal foul. But they closed to 63-57 at halftime and finally caught up on a basket by Sidney Wicks with 4:11 left.

The teams then traded baskets until Havlicek's jumper with 49 seconds left sent the game into overtime. Havlicek then hit two baskets in the first two minutes of overtime as the Celtics broke it open.

Charlie Scott added 28 points for Boston, Jo Jo White had 23 and Wicks had 21 in his debut with the Celtics. Billy Knight topped Indiana with 29.

Knicks 102, Lakers 97

Bill Bradley scored all 16 of his points in the second half and Jim McMillian, playing his first game for the Knicks, got 16 of his 18 after intermission as New York erased a 10-point third-quarter deficit.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 29 points and 17 rebounds.

Maruk lifts Barons past Blues

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Dennis Maruk, punctuating his words with a bit of a lisp through the opening where his front teeth used to be, said, "The whole thing about this game is having confidence."

The little man of the Cleveland Barons has just been oozing that commodity this season, as he demonstrated Thursday night in his team's 6-2 National Hockey League victory over the St. Louis Blues.

The greyhound-quick youngster led the rout with two goals and two assists, the first of those scores getting Cleveland off and running just 45 seconds into the game.

Maruk now has seven goals and seven assists, failing to score a goal in only one of the Barons' seven games this season.

"I was nervous last year as a rookie, and I was only 20 years old," Maruk said. "But I worked with a great line and the coach and management were fantastic. Now I really feel confident."

His quick start has put him well ahead of the pace that brought him 30 goals and 32 assists last season as a member of the then-California Golden Seals.

"I'm not really surprised because all through my career I've been a scorer," the mustachioed youngster noted. "But this is the best start I've ever had in hockey, as far back as I can remember—junior hockey, minor league hockey..."

The 5-foot-8, 175-pound Maruk began to take a beating from the bigger Blues after Cleveland jumped into a 6-1 lead midway through the second period.

"Heck, they were frustrated," he shrugged. "I don't mind getting hit at all. One time tonight, Gilles Marote (5-9, 205 pounds) put me into the boards in the corner. I went over to him and said, 'nice check.' That's the game."

"They (the Barons) capitalized on errors," explained St. Louis Coach Emile Francis. "This game is a game of mistakes and we made too many—six too many.

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Jim Colbert fired a three-under-par 67 and took a one-stroke lead after the opening round of the $125,000 Southern Open.

Volleyball team beats Bluejays

Sikeston's volleyball team won their volleyball match over Charleston in three games last night at the fieldhouse, but the big story of the evening didn't take place at the corner of Pine Street and Ables Road, the address of the gymnasium, but rather at a railroad crossing about three blocks from the facility.

"We were in the dressing room," remembers SHS coach Janie Merrick, "when one of the girls came in and said that Pam Gregory's car had been hit by a train."

Of course, when you hear about something like that, the natural thought is 'She's not going to make it'. We were pretty shaken up. Later, we found out that it was not as bad as we thought."

The SHS star player emerged from the mishap in surprisingly good shape. "There were no broken bones," said Merrick, who added that Pam might even be able to play in the regional tournament.

The relieved Bulldog squad took to the court and handed the Bluejays a double loss. The junior varsity blasted Charleston in the first game 15-1, with the jayvee substitutes doing most of the playing as Sikeston also won the second game 15-13. In the varsity match, Sikeston sandwiched identical 15-5 victories around a narrow 17-15 loss to take two out of three.

"We had Pam Weddington and Barbara Marsh out with injuries," said Merrick, noting that Sikeston was short three starting players in all. "You could say that reserves did most of the playing for us."

The double-victory wrapped up the regular season for Sikeston, which opens play in the District tournament at 8:00 p.m. Monday, Nov. 1 at Richland High School. SHS plays University High School of Cape Girardeau. U. High has not won a game this season. The match will be one of three Monday that will put the winners into the sixteen-team tournament bracket. There are 19 teams in all entered.

McDonald signed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Linebacker Mike McDonald was signed as a free agent today by the St. Louis Cardinals to fill out their shattered linebacker corps.

The 6-foot-2, 210 pound McDonald replaces middle linebacker Ray White, who suffered a knee injury in the Cardinals' 21-17 victory over Dallas last Sunday.

McDonald, 23, who played at Catawba College in North Carolina, is in his second year in the National Football League.

He was drafted in the 16th round by the New Orleans Saints in 1975 and the Saints released him in August 1975. He was signed as a free agent by the Cleveland Browns in 1976 and released just before the start of the regular season.

White underwent surgery Monday to repair ligament damage and will be out the remainder of the season.

White is the second linebacker the Cardinals have lost this season. Greg Hartle was injured in September and sidelined for the year.

Zark should break Christman's record

KANSAS CITY (AP) — With his first completion against Nebraska Saturday Steve Pisarkiewicz will probably become the all-time leading passer in the history of the University of Missouri.

"Zark," as he prefers, is just two yards short of the 3,068 yards the late Paul Christman accomplished in the pre-war years of 1938-40.

The customary sellout crowd of 76,000-plus at Nebraska's Memorial Stadium, a national television audience and a raft of professional scouts will watch the 3:20 p.m. EDT kickoff, which will showcase some of the finest players in college football.

Pisarkiewicz, who returned to action last week after resting three games with a shoulder injury, will have to be in top form to avoid being upstaged by Vince Ferragamo. The Nebraska senior, the leading passer in the Big Eight Conference, has marched the third-ranked Huskers to a 5-0-1 mark and ranks, along with Pisarkiewicz, as one of the top three or four college quarterback prospects in the nation. Twice this year Ferragano has thrown four touchdown passes in a game.

In other Big Eight action, defending national champion Oklahoma hosts Oklahoma State, Iowa State and its surprisingly explosive offense travels to Colorado and Kansas and Kansas State, both looking for their first conference victorx of the year, tangle at Manhattan.

Missouri's 4-2 over-ll record includes triumphs over Southern Cal and Ohio State, games the Tigers were supposed to lose, and losses to Illinois and Iowa State, in which they were heavily favored.

"In terms of just pure personnel they've got the best people in the league," says Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne.

The battle of the trenches should be one of the most titanic of the year. Missouri's offensive tackles, Morris Towns, 260, and James Taylor, 255, are rated by many the best in the Big Eight. They will line up eyeball-to-eyeball with Nebraska's muscular defensive duo of Ron Pruitt, 247, and Mike Fultz, 275, who might be the best tackle tandem anywhere.

In Nebraska's 51-0 crushing of Kansas State last week, Pruitt and Fultz led a ferocious charge that held the Wildcats to an atonishing minus-45 yards rushing. Fultz and Pruitt each recovered two fumbles, and Fultz totaled 10 tackles, including one for a 19-yard loss.

"I don't think," sighed a shell-shocked Kansas State Coach Ellis Rainsberger, "there is anybody better than Fultz and Pruitt in the country."

Havlicek rallies Celtics to win

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Some things never change.

On a day when the New York Nets were shipping the heart and soul of their franchise down the turnpike to Philadelphia and when 13-time All-Star Jerry West was finding out what it was like to coach, it was up to the classy captain of the Boston Celtics to lend some sense of order to it all.

So John Havlicek scored 32 points, including six in the last three minutes of regulation play and eight in overtime, and sank his final eight shots as the Celtics rallied to beat the Indiana Pacers 129-122 in one of four National Basketball Association openers Thursday night.

"That's him," marveled Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard. "He's been doing that all his life. That's what makes him one of the greatest."

In other NBA openers, the New York Knicks trimmed the Los Angeles Lakers 102-97, the Houston Rockets beat the Atlanta Hawks 120-104 and the Buffalo Braves defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 133-112.

As for NBA debuts, it was mostly negative. Indiana, one of four teams absorbed from the American Basketball Association, was a loser. Among new coaches, West, of the Lakers, and Hubie Brown of the Hawks were losers, while Tates Locke of the Braves and Tom Nissalke of the Rockets were winners.

The Celtics, defending NBA champions, trailed by 18 points in the second period, when Boston center Dave Cowens picked up his fifth personal foul. But they closed to 63-57 at halftime and finally caught up on a basket by Sidney Wicks with 4:11 left.

The teams then traded baskets until Havlicek's jumper with 49 seconds left sent the game into overtime. Havlicek then hit two baskets in the first two minutes of overtime as the Celtics broke it open.

Charlie Scott added 28 points for Boston, Jo Jo White had 23 and Wicks had 21 in his debut with the Celtics. Billy Knight topped Indiana with 29.

Knicks 102, Lakers 97

Bill Bradley scored all 16 of his points in the second half and Jim McMillian, playing his first game for the Knicks, got 16 of his 18 after intermission as New York erased a 10-point third-quarter deficit.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 29 points and 17 rebounds.

Maruk lifts Barons past Blues

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Dennis Maruk, punctuating his words with a bit of a lisp through the opening where his front teeth used to be, said, "The whole thing about this game is having confidence."

The little man of the Cleveland Barons has just been oozing that commodity this season, as he demonstrated Thursday night in his team's 6-2 National Hockey League victory over the St. Louis Blues.

The greyhound-quick youngster led the rout with two goals and two assists, the first of those scores getting Cleveland off and running just 45 seconds into the game.

Maruk now has seven goals and seven assists, failing to score a goal in only one of the Barons' seven games this season.

"I was nervous last year as a rookie, and I was only 20 years old," Maruk said. "But I worked with a great line and the coach and management were fantastic. Now I really feel confident."

His quick start has put him well ahead of the pace that brought him 30 goals and 32 assists last season as a member of the then-California Golden Seals.

"I'm not really surprised because all through my career I've been a scorer," the mustachioed youngster noted. "But this is the best start I've ever had in hockey, as far back as I can remember—junior hockey, minor league hockey..."

The 5-foot-8, 175-pound Maruk began to take a beating from the bigger Blues after Cleveland jumped into a 6-1 lead midway through the second period.

"Heck, they were frustrated," he shrugged. "I don't mind getting hit at all. One time tonight, Gilles Marote (5-9, 205 pounds) put me into the boards in the corner. I went over to him and said, 'nice check.' That's the game."

"They (the Barons) capitalized on errors," explained St. Louis Coach Emile Francis. "This game is a game of mistakes and we made too many—six too many.

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Jim Colbert fired a three-under-par 67 and took a one-stroke lead after the opening round of the $125,000 Southern Open.

McDonald signed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Linebacker Mike McDonald was signed as a free agent today by the St. Louis Cardinals to fill out their shattered linebacker corps.

The 6-foot-2, 210 pound McDonald replaces middle linebacker Ray White, who suffered a knee injury in the Cardinals' 21-17 victory over Dallas last Sunday.

McDonald, 23, who played at Catawba College in North Carolina, is in his second year in the National Football League.

He was drafted in the 16th round by the New Orleans Saints in 1975 and the Saints released him in August 1975. He was signed as a free agent by the Cleveland Browns in 1976 and released just before the start of the regular season.

White underwent surgery Monday to repair ligament damage and will be out the remainder of the season.

White is the second linebacker the Cardinals have lost this season. Greg Hartle was injured in September and sidelined for the year.

Zark should break Christman's record

KANSAS CITY (AP) — With his first completion against Nebraska Saturday Steve Pisarkiewicz will probably become the all-time leading passer in the history of the University of Missouri.

"Zark," as he prefers, is just two yards short of the 3,068 yards the late Paul Christman accomplished in the pre-war years of 1938-40.

The customary sellout crowd of 76,000-plus at Nebraska's Memorial Stadium, a national television audience and a raft of professional scouts will watch the 3:20 p.m. EDT kickoff, which will showcase some of the finest players in college football.

Pisarkiewicz, who returned to action last week after resting three games with a shoulder injury, will have to be in top form to avoid being upstaged by Vince Ferragamo. The Nebraska senior, the leading passer in the Big Eight Conference, has marched the third-ranked Huskers to a 5-0-1 mark and ranks, along with Pisarkiewicz, as one of the top three or four college quarterback prospects in the nation. Twice this year Ferragano has thrown four touchdown passes in a game.

In other Big Eight action, defending national champion Oklahoma hosts Oklahoma State, Iowa State and its surprisingly explosive offense travels to Colorado and Kansas and Kansas State, both looking for their first conference victorx of the year, tangle at Manhattan.

Missouri's 4-2 over-ll record includes triumphs over Southern Cal and Ohio State, games the Tigers were supposed to lose, and losses to Illinois and Iowa State, in which they were heavily favored.

"In terms of just pure personnel they've got the best people in the league," says Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne.

The battle of the trenches should be one of the most titanic of the year. Missouri's offensive tackles, Morris Towns, 260, and James Taylor, 255, are rated by many the best in the Big Eight. They will line up eyeball-to-eyeball with Nebraska's muscular defensive duo of Ron Pruitt, 247, and Mike Fultz, 275, who might be the best tackle tandem anywhere.

In Nebraska's 51-0 crushing of Kansas State last week, Pruitt and Fultz led a ferocious charge that held the Wildcats to an atonishing minus-45 yards rushing. Fultz and Pruitt each recovered two fumbles, and Fultz totaled 10 tackles, including one for a 19-yard loss.

"I don't think," sighed a shell-shocked Kansas State Coach Ellis Rainsberger, "there is anybody better than Fultz and Pruitt in the country."

Economist says voters exemption of sales tax 'won't be quite severe'

An economist hired to do work for the upcoming Governor's Conference on Education indicates the loss of revenue that might result if voters exempt food and drugs from the sales tax won't be quite as severe as some say.

That economist's study puts the price tag for the exemption probably around $100 million, based on its finding that in 1974 the state would have lost about $90 million without taxing sales of food and drugs.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond and other state officials who oppose the amendment have consistently said the exemption of food and drugs would cost the state $140 million and cities $40 million.

Opponents of the constitutional amendment seeking to exempt food and drugs have consistently used the $140 million figure when putting out arguments against it. Widely publicized figures on how much individual cities and school districts would lose are also based on the $140 million figure.

In a related matter to the above, the State Tax Structure Study Commission is expected to make its feelings known on the amendment. Those feelings are expected to be negative and at the same time the commission's members might put forward the alternative they will recommend to Bond should the amendment pass.

Peck's resemblance of MacArthur is 'uncanny'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The resemblance is uncanny: the same straight hair swept sideways, the same old-soldier erectness, the same air of total authority.

Visitors to Stage 29 at Universal Studio could not help staring at Gregory Peck. His resemblance to Gen. Douglas MacArthur was remarkable, yet it was accomplished only with a razor and comb. The hairline was shaved back, a bald spot created at the back of the head, and the hair was combed over in MacArthur's camoflage style.

"I'm not trying to do an impersonation," explained the star of "MacArthur," a film to be released early next year. "It seems to me that would become wearing after two hours on the screen. I decided to try for some superficial resemblances and then try to get into his shoes and think as he thought."

Peck, 60, was performing a key scene in the Zanuck-Brown production tracing MacArthur's life in his last two wars and thereafter. The victorious general was having his first meeting in Tokyo with Emperor Hirohito, played by John Fujioka.

"Americans don't play the role of conquerors; they think of themselves as liberators," MacArthur tells the emperor. The meeting is polite, but the general speculates on how Hirohito was able to use [illegible] fluence to end the war [illegible] to prevent it.

Director Joseph Sargent had the actors repeat the scene many times, photographing from several angles. Each time Peck was letter-perfect in his lengthy dialogue.

Afterward he said: "I'm having a wonderful time; I look forward to coming to work every day. MacArthur is an actor's dream, a character of great dimension. He could be aloof and distant, yet the emotions were seething underneath.

"He hated seeing his 'boys,' as he called them, killed in battle. The sight of 200 dead Marines made him physically ill. He could be tender and compassionate, yet there were other times when he seemed on the edge of paranoia. He was a brilliant tactician and an awesome, inspiring commander.

"He marched to his own tune. That's what makes him such a great character to play."

Peck added that he had no compulsive urge to play MacArthur. When the project was first announced four years ago, he assumed George C. Scott would star, since Scott had appeared in "Patton" for the same production team. But Scott declined to repeat as a World War II commander.

Sears gets orders to stop using bait-and-switch tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission today approved an order that bars Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, from using bait-and-switch tactics to sell major home appliances.

Sears, in agreeing to the order, admitted no wrongdoing. But the company said in a statement that "incidents which came to light in the recent FTC hearings were violations of Sears policy as well as FTC standards."

Sears had been accused by the FTC of luring buyers into stores with advertisements for especially low-priced appliances and then trying to pressure customers into buying more expensive models. This practice is known as bait-and-switch.

There is no penalty involved in today's FTC order; Sears only agreed not to use such tactics in the future. But the order has the force of law and any subsequent violation could cost Sears $10,000 per offense.

The case against Sears was launched in 1971 as a result of complaints from customers and competitors, and the FTC began formal action in 1974, an FTC spokesman said.

Forty-seven witnesses, mainly Sears salesmen and customers, testified before the FTC in Chicago earlier this year before the hearings were stopped at Sears' request for purposes of negotiating a settlement. Today's order resulted from the hearing.

The original complaint was based on a Sears ad that offered, for $58, a sewing machine that could do button holes, sew zig-zag stitches and operate in reverse.

If a customer sought to buy that machine, the FTC said, he was told that the appliance really could not perform those elaborate functions, was noisy, lacked a standard guarantee and could require a long time to deliver. A more-expensive model was suggested.

"We had a lot of salesmen testify that divisional sales managers put a lot of pressure on them to sell the more-expensive items," said Stephanie Kanwit, director of the Chicago regional FTC office. "The salesmen then decided they had to push the high-priced goods."

In many cases, Mrs. Kanwit said, the advertised special was unavailable for sale. The hearing evidence showed that Sears' bait-and-switch tactics were a nationwide problem, she said.

Economist says voters exemption of sales tax 'won't be quite severe'

An economist hired to do work for the upcoming Governor's Conference on Education indicates the loss of revenue that might result if voters exempt food and drugs from the sales tax won't be quite as severe as some say.

That economist's study puts the price tag for the exemption probably around $100 million, based on its finding that in 1974 the state would have lost about $90 million without taxing sales of food and drugs.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond and other state officials who oppose the amendment have consistently said the exemption of food and drugs would cost the state $140 million and cities $40 million.

Opponents of the constitutional amendment seeking to exempt food and drugs have consistently used the $140 million figure when putting out arguments against it. Widely publicized figures on how much individual cities and school districts would lose are also based on the $140 million figure.

In a related matter to the above, the State Tax Structure Study Commission is expected to make its feelings known on the amendment. Those feelings are expected to be negative and at the same time the commission's members might put forward the alternative they will recommend to Bond should the amendment pass.

Peck's resemblance of MacArthur is 'uncanny'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The resemblance is uncanny: the same straight hair swept sideways, the same old-soldier erectness, the same air of total authority.

Visitors to Stage 29 at Universal Studio could not help staring at Gregory Peck. His resemblance to Gen. Douglas MacArthur was remarkable, yet it was accomplished only with a razor and comb. The hairline was shaved back, a bald spot created at the back of the head, and the hair was combed over in MacArthur's camoflage style.

"I'm not trying to do an impersonation," explained the star of "MacArthur," a film to be released early next year. "It seems to me that would become wearing after two hours on the screen. I decided to try for some superficial resemblances and then try to get into his shoes and think as he thought."

Peck, 60, was performing a key scene in the Zanuck-Brown production tracing MacArthur's life in his last two wars and thereafter. The victorious general was having his first meeting in Tokyo with Emperor Hirohito, played by John Fujioka.

"Americans don't play the role of conquerors; they think of themselves as liberators," MacArthur tells the emperor. The meeting is polite, but the general speculates on how Hirohito was able to use [illegible] influence to end the war [illegible] to prevent it.

Director Joseph Sargent had the actors repeat the scene many times, photographing from several angles. Each time Peck was letter-perfect in his lengthy dialogue.

Afterward he said: "I'm having a wonderful time; I look forward to coming to work every day. MacArthur is an actor's dream, a character of great dimension. He could be aloof and distant, yet the emotions were seething underneath.

"He hated seeing his 'boys,' as he called them, killed in battle. The sight of 200 dead Marines made him physically ill. He could be tender and compassionate, yet there were other times when he seemed on the edge of paranoia. He was a brilliant tactician and an awesome, inspiring commander.

"He marched to his own tune. That's what makes him such a great character to play."

Peck added that he had no compulsive urge to play MacArthur. When the project was first announced four years ago, he assumed George C. Scott would star, since Scott had appeared in "Patton" for the same production team. But Scott declined to repeat as a World War II commander.

Some alarmists seem to view this country in hysterical persepctive.

Some people are completely unbiased; others just have never had a conviction about anything, ever.

Sears gets orders to stop using bait-and-switch tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission today approved an order that bars Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, from using bait-and-switch tactics to sell major home appliances.

Sears, in agreeing to the order, admitted no wrongdoing. But the company said in a statement that "incidents which came to light in the recent FTC hearings were violations of Sears policy as well as FTC standards."

Sears had been accused by the FTC of luring buyers into stores with advertisements for especially low-priced appliances and then trying to pressure customers into buying more expensive models. This practice is known as bait-and-switch.

There is no penalty involved in today's FTC order; Sears only agreed not to use such tactics in the future. But the order has the force of law and any subsequent violation could cost Sears $10,000 per offense.

The case against Sears was launched in 1971 as a result of complaints from customers and competitors, and the FTC began formal action in 1974, an FTC spokesman said.

Forty-seven witnesses, mainly Sears salesmen and customers, testified before the FTC in Chicago earlier this year before the hearings were stopped at Sears' request for purposes of negotiating a settlement. Today's order resulted from the hearing.

The original complaint was based on a Sears ad that offered, for $58, a sewing machine that could do button holes, sew zig-zag stitches and operate in reverse.

If a customer sought to buy that machine, the FTC said, he was told that the appliance really could not perform those elaborate functions, was noisy, lacked a standard guarantee and could require a long time to deliver. A more-expensive model was suggested.

"We had a lot of salesmen testify that divisional sales managers put a lot of pressure on them to sell the more-expensive items," said Stephanie Kanwit, director of the Chicago regional FTC office. "The salesmen then decided they had to push the high-priced goods."

In many cases, Mrs. Kanwit said, the advertised special was unavailable for sale. The hearing evidence showed that Sears' bait-and-switch tactics were a nationwide problem, she said.

Pet rock cemetery thrives

DETROIT (AP) — What do you do with a dead pet rock?

Bury it in Jackie Hopper's pet rock cemetery on Detroit's southwest side, of course.

The small cemetary, covered with artificial turf and bounded by white concrete blocks, has become a neighborhood attraction. Children, auto workers, passersby, and even policemen and firemen stop to read the epitaphs on the white concrete tombstones.

"George went through too many windows," the epitaph of one boy's pet rock reads.

Mrs. Hopper started the cemetery in the parking lot across the street from the bar she and her husband own after seeing ads for food to keep pet rocks "alive."

"I figured, well, I'll just take care of that," she said, "I'll make a cemetery to handle the dead ones."

There are currently 23 plots in the cemetery, and Mrs. Hopper said people are still calling to reserve spots. Burial is free.

Mrs. Hopper supplied the block tombstones and candles in front of the graves. Neighbors have brought plastic flowers.

"I figured the second night it'd be torn up," said Mrs. Hopper, who's lived in the neighborhood for 26 years. "But everybody loves it, especially the kids."

Area diocese represented at U.S. Catholic meeting

DETROIT (AP) — The U.S. Catholic Church, with encouragement from Pope Paul VI, is launching an unprecedented convention to assemble a five-year plan of social action for America's more than 45 million Catholics.

The "Call to Action" Conference, a two-year Bicentennial project opening today, is billed as the most representative national assembly of American Roman Catholics in history.

The three-day convention, sponsored by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and hosted by the Archdiocese of Detroit, caps a series of local and national discussions which have sought to identify social injustice within the church and to propose solutions.

Some 1,500 bishops, priests, religious and lay people are to discuss such issues as the role of women in the church, the church's political responsibility and a call for greater lay participation in decision-making.

"Before the world, you are humbly asserting your conviction that freedom and justice are truly an essential element of Christ's teaching," Pope Paul said in a filmed message to be shown to delegates.

Among those attending are 110 of the nation's 300 bishops, said Francis J. Butler, executive director of the NCCB Committee for the Bicentennial. Also represented are 150 of the 170 U.S. dioceses, geographical units made up of local parishes.

Over the past two years, more than 849,000 persons told local and national hearings of changes they felt were needed in the church, convention officials said.

"Concerns dealing with family life in America certainly were dominant in the consultations," Butler said at a briefing Wednesday. "Another concern deals with communication and decision-making in the church. They want to have a voice in the church. They want the church to be more responsive to their needs."

One recommendation includes a call for the NCCB to "sponsor an interpretive study of recent papal and episcopal statements on the subject of ordination of women."

Another asks church officials to give "reasons for administrative and policy decisions and conduct their affairs in the open."

Butler acknowledged that bishops could veto convention decisions at a meeting next May in Chicago, but he was optimistic the church hierarchy would "warmly welcome" some of the decisions.

Nine Missourians, including Bishop Bernard Law, will represent the Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese at the conference.

Chancery staff members from Springfield among the delegates, other than Bishop Law, will be: the Rev. Phil Bucher, vicar for planning and renewal; Sister Margaret Hosch, director of religious education; and Sister Teresa Tolle, director of the office of social concerns; and Robert Lee, editor of the diocesan newspaper, The Mirror.

The Rev. William Krudwig, pastor of St. Elizabeth Parish in Eldorado Springs, and three lay delegates, Mrs. Le Thi Hien of Neosho, Theresa Weber of Scott City and Tim Smith of Hollister, complete the diocesan delegation.

In preparation for the meeting, Bishop Law worked with the committee on personhood, which will present recommendations on Christian community, personal development, sexuality and the formation of a Catholic Bill of Rights.

According to Sister Alice Gallin, director of research for the program in Washington, D.C., the role of women in the church was identified as a justice issue by more participants than any other single topic.

Each diocesan delegate has selected one of the topic areas to work on during the conference.

Thirty recommendations in all will be voted on and submitted to the Bishops for deliberation at their semi-annual meeting next May.

Kansas City man named to lead state Baptists

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Milton Morales, a former Kansas City assistant city manager, Tuesday was elected president of the Missouri Baptist Convention at the three-day annual meeting here.

The convention also elected 16 new members to the convention's executive board, which presented its annual report, including 15 recommendations.

Among the recommendations were proposals that the annual conventions be held only in the Kansas City, St. Louis and Springfield areas and that construction of a dining facility and chapel-auditorium complex at Southwest Baptist College in Bolivar, Mo., be authorized.

Playboy interview gets mixed reaction

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Delegates to a Missouri Baptist Convention here this week gave a mixed review to Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter's recent interview in Playboy magazine.

Most members interviewed at random said they felt Carter was right in what he said, but wrong to use the language he did and to have been published in Playboy in the first place.

Many delegates said they thought the whole thing was a non-issue and was dying down to the point it would not affect Carter's campaign.

About 1,700 members of the Missouri Baptist Convention, a largely white group affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention, attended the three-day session which ended Wednesday night. About 1,800 persons from three, largely black Baptist groups in Missouri joined in worship services earlier in the week—the first inter-racial services in the history of the four groups.

"I come from a small town, and I'd be afraid even to buy a Playboy there," said James Hall of Hawk Point, Mo. Hall, who said he hadn't read the interview, only excerpts, objected to the coarse language used by Carter but not his message.

The Rev. Bart Tichenor of Ashland, Mo., assistant majority leader of the Missouri Senate, said anyone who says he won't vote for Carter because of the Playboy interview "probably already had another reason not to like Carter."

MOREHOUSE — The Heavenly Echoes, a gospel singing group from Lutesville, will sing at the Morehouse Assembly of God Church at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, the Rev. R.A. McAnulty, pastor, has announced.

Area diocese represented at U.S. Catholic meeting

DETROIT (AP) — The U.S. Catholic Church, with encouragement from Pope Paul VI, is launching an unprecedented convention to assemble a five-year plan of social action for America's more than 45 million Catholics.

The "Call to Action" Conference, a two-year Bicentennial project opening today, is billed as the most representative national assembly of American Roman Catholics in history.

The three-day convention, sponsored by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and hosted by the Archdiocese of Detroit, caps a series of local and national discussions which have sought to identify social injustice within the church and to propose solutions.

Some 1,500 bishops, priests, religious and lay people are to discuss such issues as the role of women in the church, the church's political responsibility and a call for greater lay participation in decision-making.

"Before the world, you are humbly asserting your conviction that freedom and justice are truly an essential element of Christ's teaching," Pope Paul said in a filmed message to be shown to delegates.

Among those attending are 110 of the nation's 300 bishops, said Francis J. Butler, executive director of the NCCB Committee for the Bicentennial. Also represented are 150 of the 170 U.S. dioceses, geographical units made up of local parishes.

Over the past two years, more than 849,000 persons told local and national hearings of changes they felt were needed in the church, convention officials said.

"Concerns dealing with family life in America certainly were dominant in the consultations," Butler said at a briefing Wednesday. "Another concern deals with communication and decision-making in the church. They want to have a voice in the church. They want the church to be more responsive to their needs."

One recommendation includes a call for the NCCB to "sponsor an interpretive study of recent papal and episcopal statements on the subject of ordination of women."

Another asks church officials to give "reasons for administrative and policy decisions and conduct their affairs in the open."

Butler acknowledged that bishops could veto convention decisions at a meeting next May in Chicago, but he was optimistic the church hierarchy would "warmly welcome" some of the decisions.

Nine Missourians, including Bishop Bernard Law, will represent the Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese at the conference.

Chancery staff members from Springfield among the delegates, other than Bishop Law, will be: the Rev. Phil Bucher, vicar for planning and renewal; Sister Margaret Hosch, director of religious education; and Sister Teresa Tolle, director of the office of social concerns; and Robert Lee, editor of the diocesan newspaper, The Mirror.

The Rev. William Krudwig, pastor of St. Elizabeth Parish in Eldorado Springs, and three lay delegates, Mrs. Le Thi Hien of Neosho, Theresa Weber of Scott City and Tim Smith of Hollister, complete the diocesan delegation.

In preparation for the meeting, Bishop Law worked with the committee on personhood, which will present recommendations on Christian community, personal development, sexuality and the formation of a Catholic Bill of Rights.

According to Sister Alice Gallin, director of research for the program in Washington, D.C., the role of women in the church was identified as a justice issue by more participants than any other single topic.

Thirty recommendations in all will be voted on and submitted to the Bishops for deliberation at their semi-annual meeting next May.

Songsmen to present concert

The Songsmen Quartet of Paragould, Ark., will present a gospel singing concert from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the Sikeston Free Will Baptist Church, Highway 60 East. The group has been singing in concerts, revivals and benefit programs throughout the Mid-South for a number of years.

Revival set next week at New Bethel church

CHARLESTON — The Rev. Clyde L. Riddle, pastor of First Baptist Church in Sikeston, will be the evangelist during revival services beginning Monday and continuing through Oct. 31 at New Bethel Baptist Church, located four miles south of town off Highway 105. Services will begin nightly at 7 o'clock.

Special musical programs will be presented each night, featuring the Bethel Four Quartet, choir and girls sextet, in addition to invited vocalists. John Shoffner is director of music.

The Rev. Homer L. Stallings, pastor, has announced that special events have been planned for each service, including: Pack the Pews Night, Family Night, Singspiration Night and Family Fellowship Night with a potluck supper.

The closing day, Oct. 31, has been designated "Miracle Sunday", and will feature an attempt to break all attendance records. Also, Dr. Lynnell C. Dupont of Sikeston will give her personal testimony that day.

Saturday will be Youth Night. Following the services, a fellowship program for young people is scheduled. Mark Tappmeyer, minister of education and youth at First Baptist Church in Sikeston, will be the speaker for the youth program.

Oct. 30 singing event scheduled

EAST PRAIRIE — Featured vocalists for a gospel singing program at 7 p.m. Oct. 30 at St. James Village Baptist Church will be the Revelators Quartet.

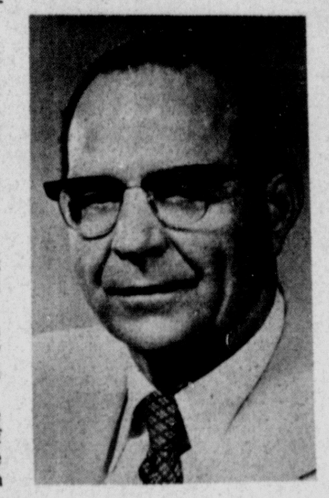
First Methodist to host speaker

The Rev. Dr. C. Shrum Burton, vice president for development at Saint Paul School of Theology in Kansas City, will be guest minister Sunday at First United Methodist Church, Highway 61 North. Dr. Burton will deliver a sermon titled "The Grace of Christ" during the 10:45 a.m. worship service.

A graduate of Southwest Missouri State University and Perkins School of Theology, Dr. Burton was awarded an honorary doctor of divinity degree by Philander Smith College.

In May 1974, he joined the faculty at Saint Paul School of Theology. He had served for the previous five years at North Cross United Methodist Church, following three years as executive director of the Methodist Metropolitan Planning Commission and eight years as pastor of Country Club United Methodist Church, all in Kansas City.

Dr. Burton is well-known for his active support of civic and ecumenical projects, which include service as president of the Greater Kansas City Council of Churches and its successor, Metropolitan Interchurch Agency (MICA). For many years he was also a Reserve chaplain, serving as senior chaplain of the Missouri Army National Guard subsequent to active military duty in World War II and in Korea.



Dr. Shrum Burton

Dr. Burton has been identified with radio and television ministry in Kansas City, serving as director of communications for MICA. Since 1962, he has been commentator on the weekly radio program, "Our World of Religion," and for two years was the host and producer of a weekly television program, "Faces of Religion". He is chairman of the Missouri area committee on communications for United Methodism.

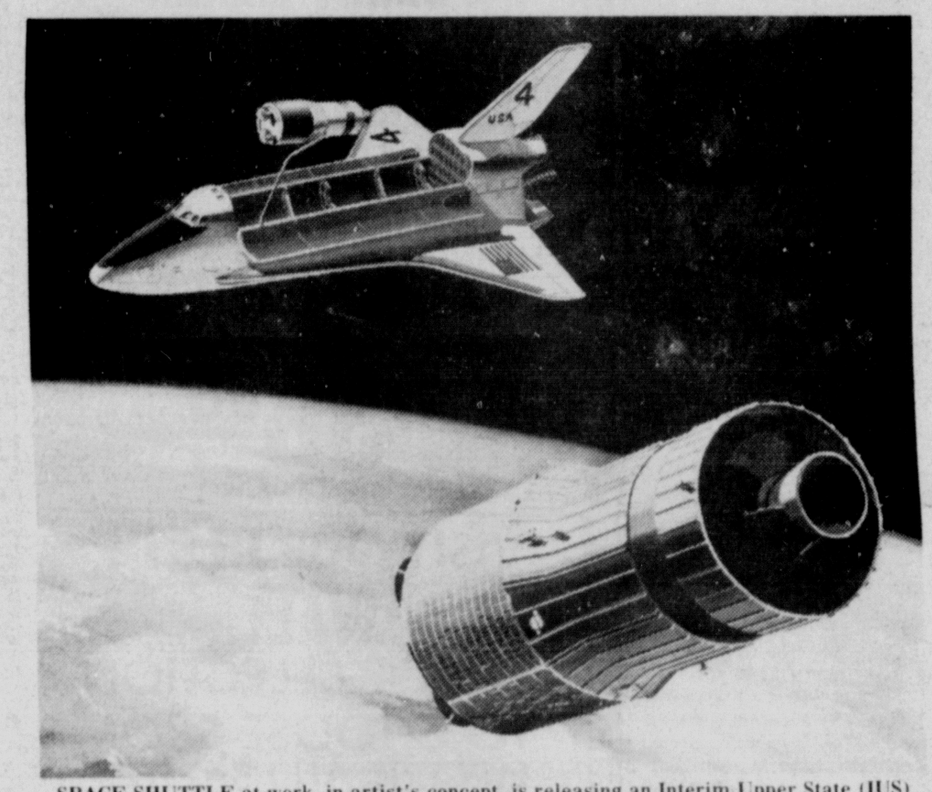
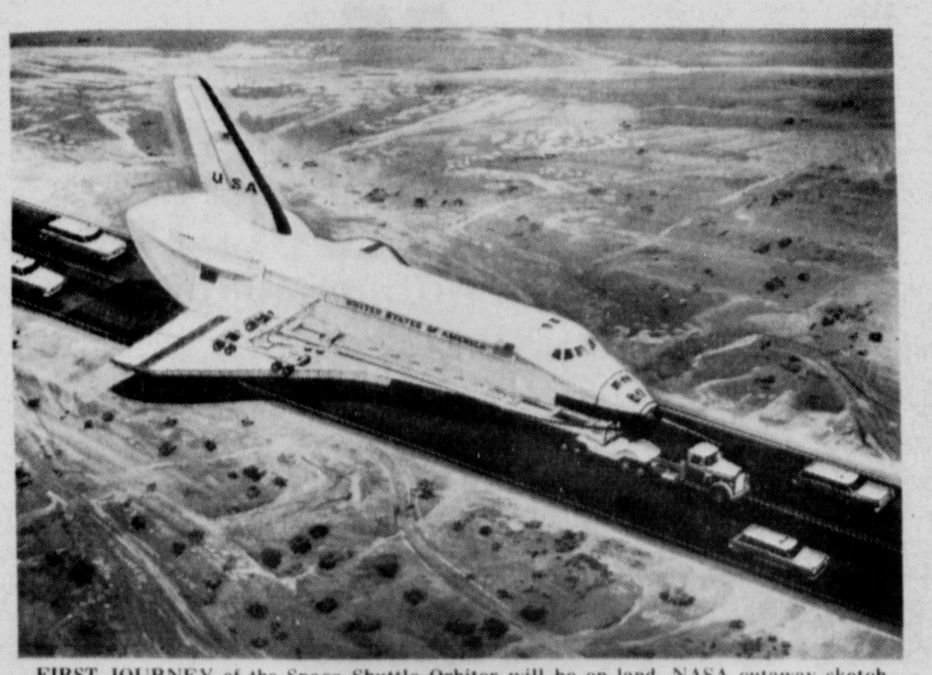
THE DAILY STANDARD

FAST RELIEF for the irritation of back seat drivers is this French-made Citroen "2CV" recently exhibited at an auto show in Frankfurt, West Germany. Exhibitors said the car can go "full speed in both directions — forwards and backwards."

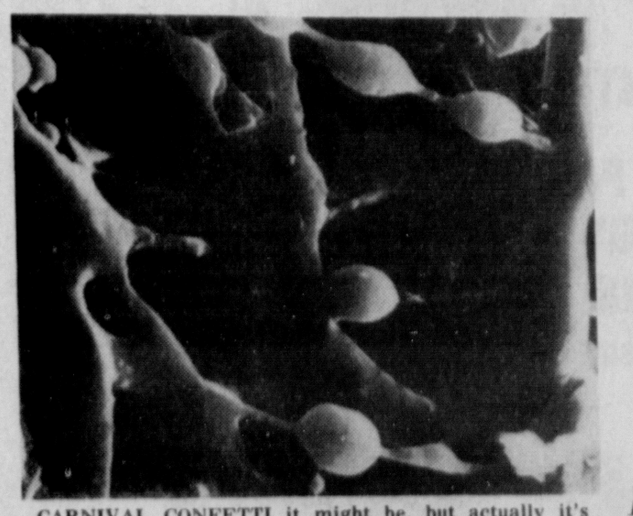
LABOR OF NECESSITY of a few decades past becomes today's work of art. Dapper young gentleman cranking up his Model T for a family outing is sculpted in pewter. Robin Grieco gives a final polish to the miniature, one of a limited edition produced by The Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, Pa.



SPACE SHUTTLE at work, in artist's concept, is releasing an Interim Upper State (IUS) from its cargo compartment. In foreground is an IUS already floating free in earth orbit. The IUS, designed to lift payloads into higher orbits or planetary trajectories, is a solid-fuel vehicle being developed for the Air Force by Boeing Aerospace Co.



FIRST JOURNEY of the Space Shuttle Orbiter will be on land. NASA cutaway sketch depicts planned transport of the shuttle from the Rockwell International facilities at Palmdale, Calif., along 31 miles of highway to the Dryden Flight Research Center, Edwards, Calif., for prelaunch checkout. The move is scheduled for January of 1977.



CARNIVAL CONFETTI it might be, but actually it's another case of visual deception thanks to a scanning electron microscope. Droplets of mist invisible to the naked eye and trapped in a web-like fiber glass filter are magnified 3,000 times at Toledo, Ohio, technical center of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation.

SHOPLIFT

Here it comes again . . . another shoplifting pitch. We know you've heard it before, but read on. Shoplifting is stealing. It is punishable by law and it labels you a criminal. It can wipe out your hopes for the future. It gets you a court record that can't be erased. Say goodby to college plans or landing a job. Employers will think twice before they hire a thief. Is that wallet, necklace or lipstick you pocket worth the price you must pay in the end?
